Seek Shotgun Killer of Freedom Mother and Son

Police Hold Suspect Caught In Green Bay; Seek Another

Mrs. Annie Van Camp, 77, William, 31, Killed by Shotgun Blasts in Faces Late Saturday Night at Their Farmhouse

A 77-year-old mother and the youngest of her seven sons were murdered at their farm home five miles north of Little Chute Saturday night.

The bodies of Mrs. Annie Van Camp and her son, William, 31, were discovered early Sunday morning, Mother's day. Both had been struck in the face by shot gun slugs from a heavy gauge weapon. Both had been killed instantly.

Outagamie county authorities, who began an investigation of the double slaying early Sunday morning, were working on meager clues today in their efforts to determine the identity of the murderer.

Sheriff John Lappen and his aids today were questioning a suspect and were looking for another believed to have had a connection with the family. Authorities also were seeking the murder weapon.

William operated the farm and he and his mother were the only occupants of the large farmhouse, located on County Trunk U near its intersection with Highway 55.

The nearest neighbors are the John Verkuilen who live across the county road on one of the two Van Camp farms. Verkuilen, employed on the Van Camp property, discovered the bodies about 6:45 Sunday morning when William failed to appear for the morning chores.

Verkuilen said William usually came over to the south barn for breakfast milk, and when he failed to appear Sunday morning, Verkuilen took milk over to the Van Camp farmhouse. He said he found the body of William sprawled face up in a pool of blood on the floor of an enclosed back porch.

He investigated further and found Mrs. Van Camp dead in her bed. Both victims were struck in the face, Mrs. Van Camp in the right cheek and William in the left cheek. Both shots had been fired point blank county authorities theorized, because the wounds were not much larger than the bore of a 12-gauge gun.

The shooting probably occurred sometime between 9 o'clock Saturday evening and midnight, Verkuilen said. William played ball with a group of young people of the neighborhood until about 9 o'clock. When the murder probe was launched early Sunday morning, Dr. H. E. Ellsworth, Outagamie county coroner, said the condition of the bodies indicated that William and his mother had been dead at least six hours.

Preparing for Bed

William had not retired, for his bed was undisturbed, but apparently he was preparing to do so for he was barefoot and wearing only a pair of overalls over his undershirt when his body was found.

One suggestion advanced was that the young man had just finished shaving in preparation for church Sunday morning when he heard someone at the rear entrance to the house and was killed while he went to investigate. The position of his body indicated that he was shot at point blank range while standing in the doorway of the rear porch.

His mother had retired, and if William's death preceded hers, and all signs indicated that it did, she either did not hear the shot or was slain so soon after that she had no opportunity to leave her bed.

The killer apparently stood only a few feet away when he fired, once. Death was so instantaneous that the dead bodies over the aged woman did not appear to have been disturbed.

Lending credence to a theory that robbery was the motive, an empty purse, a leather sack with a drawing, was found on the dresser in

Roosevelt Seeks Added Funds for National Defense

Plans to Make Recommendation After Series of Conferences

Washington—(P)—President Roosevelt plans to send to congress this week a recommendation for more money for national defense.

Stephen Early, presidential secretary, said the president at this time had no specific amount in mind, but would decide on some sum as a result of conferences with his advisers on defense. One such conference, with war and treasury department officials was scheduled today.

Already pending before congress are requests for upwards of $2,000,000,000 for defense requirements in the year starting July 1. There has been some conjecture that Mr. Roosevelt, in view of needs emphasized by the war abroad, might request another $500,000,000.

Need Mobile Forces

It appeared likely that stronger mobile defense forces to safeguard the western hemisphere at any threatened point would figure in his budget.

Body of Missing Girl Is Found in Indiana

Marshall, Ind.—(P)—Hunt for Mary Sprague, 15, of Carbondale, Ill., has ended eight days after her disappearance with a boy companion while on an outing at Turkey Run State park with other members of the sophomore class of Olivet, Ill., academy.

Led by Elmer Gerrard of West Union, searchers in a boat found the girl's body yesterday in driftwood in Sugar creek five miles west of the park. The body of T. W. Williams, Jr., 15, of Joliet, Ill., was found in the park on a sandbar in the stream, Thursday.

The location of the body caused searchers to believe the couple had fallen into the creek from a 15-foot high promontory. They had been hunted by park employees, state police, CCC youths and volunteers since they disappeared the afternoon of May 4.

Coroner B. H. Branson said he would withhold a verdict pending further investigation.

Leeman Man Dies After Auto Rolls Over at Curve; 9 Persons Injured in Weekend Accidents

Leo Bollena, 24, Leeman, was hurt fatally about 9 o'clock Saturday night when his car went off a road at a turn and rolled over three times near Leeman. Nine other persons were injured in accidents in Appleton and vicinity, over the weekend, and an Appleton party was involved in a fatal accident near Lomira yesterday.

Bollena who was employed at the Pierre store, Leeman, and had left the store to go to Shoshone when the accident occurred on County Trunk B a mile south of Leeman. He was alone at the time and was taken to a New London hospital where he died shortly after the accident. He suffered fractures of the skull, nose, collar bone, ribs and a punctured lung.

Jack Frenz, county traffic police, who investigated the accident, said Bollena was found lying on the ground beside the wrecked machine. The traffic death is the eighth in Outagamie county this far this year, Sheriff John

Child Drowns in Fox River Canal

Body of Fred Schuenemann, Jr., Recovered After 2-Hour Search

Four-year-old Fred, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Schuenemann, Sr., 221 E. McKinley street, drowned shortly before noon today when he fell into the Fox river canal below the Second lock. Police immediately began a search for the boy, and the body was recovered about 1:35 this afternoon after water in the canal between the second and third lock was lowered.

The child was playing near the canal with another youngster, according to police, and it has not been determined how the tragedy occurred. The body was found about 250 feet below the second lock.

Mr. and Mrs. Schuenemann were injured in a traffic accident early Saturday morning when the car in which they were riding went off Highway 10 west of Appleton and struck a pole. Mrs. Schuenemann was treated at St. Elizabeth hospital and Mr. Schuenemann was released from the hospital this noon.

Conflicting Claims on Reorganization Bill

Washington—(P)—Opposing senate forces issued contradictory claims of victory today in the battle over reorganizing the civil aeronautics authority.

Senator McCarran (D-Nev.) leading the fight to block the president's plan to transfer the independent agency to the commerce department, told reporters that "we have the votes" to disapprove it.

Administration lieutenant, headed by Senator Byrnes (D-S.C.), contended that they held an eight-vote margin in favor of the transfer. Some impartial senators described the outcome as a toss-up.

Allies Set for Big Battle as Germans Speed Up Drive

Nazi Troops Hold Liege Citadel, High Command Declares

Berlin—(P)—DNE, official German news agency, reported today that one of the German armies sweeping into the lowlands had captured about 18,000 Dutch soldiers, while at one point in south Holland a Dutch general and his staff were seized.

DNE said 600 French soldiers were captured in an action south of Saarbrücken, on the Maginot-westwall front, in which German lines pushed forward.

The agency also reported the capture of 300 prisoners, mostly British, by German forces in Norway in a fight at Mo, north of Mosjoen, on the west coast between Narvik and Trondheim.

Berlin—(P)—German troops have broken into strategic Liege and the German flag has waved over the citadel of the famous fortress since this morning, the high command announced today.

(A French war department spokesman said at mid-afternoon that so far the only fort in the fortified zone around Liege that has fallen to the Germans is Eben Emael.)

Belgian troops are fighting bitterly against the crushing German advance, however, and are offering opposition in some of the outer forts of Liege, it said.

French troops are moving up and have been thrown into the area south of Liege and west of the Ourthe river, toward which the German troops are moving, it added.

German troops also are driving west from Liege, north of the Meuse river.

The communique, issued from Adolf Hitler's headquarters with his army, said:

"The attack of German forces in the west made good progress on May 12."

"In Holland, German troops are moving forward west of the south Willem canal. They have established contact with troops landed by air around Rotterdam."

"In Belgium, the crossing of the Albert canal was forced northwest of Hasselt. Our troops are moving forward west of Liege and north of the Meuse and have broken into the city of Liege."

"The German flag has waved on the citadel since the forenoon of May 13 while individual outer forts still resist."

"French troops have been thrown west of the Ourthe in southern Belgium. Our troops are there in a fluid advance and are beginning to approach the goal set up."

Report Advance

"South and southeastward from Zweibrücken (on the westwall-Maginot front), our positions were moved forward and several hundred prisoners were taken. The advance of our army was supported effectively by the air force with attacks on troop concentrations, march columns and railroads."

"The air force continues its great battle for air superiority over the western area of operations with noticeable success. In all, on May 12, 320 planes were destroyed, among them 88 in air fights, 72 by anti-aircraft fire."

Germany apparently is staking "almost everything in an attempt to win the war quickly," a British source said, and speeding an attempt to drive a wedge between the Dutch and the Belgians while throwing numbers of parachute troops into behind-the-lines action.

Britons should not be disheartened "when they hear of certain withdrawals," he said.

Britain felt the tightening pressure of the increased war effort launched under the leadership of Winston Churchill.

Minister to Denmark Urges Preparedness

Wisconsin Rapids—(P)—Alvin Mansfield Owsley, United States minister to Denmark, declared here today that "the obligation of America is to become so strong that this mad dog of Europe would not dare to lay his hand against the sovereignty of the U. S."

European War Bulletins

Basel, Switzerland—(P)—French artillery and allied air bombs this afternoon shattered part of the Istein railroad tunnel under Germany's "Gibraltar of the Rhine." This destruction closed to military traffic a section of the vital army railroad incorporated in the westwall fortifications. Passenger traffic on this German Rhine line was cut off after an attack on a freight train near Istein by a French warplane Saturday.

Paris—(P)—French, Belgian and Dutch troops in Belgium and the Netherlands were falling back in accordance with strategic plans tonight before savage onslaughts of German advance guards of motorized corps supported by air bombardments, said a French war ministry spokesman.

London—(P)—The house of commons today gave Prime Minister Churchill's new war government a vote of confidence, 381 to 0. The house of lords also gave the government a unanimous vote of confidence and adjourned until May 21. Commons also adjourned until that date.

Paris—(P)—The Germans lost 400 airplanes in the first three and a half days of their new drive against the lowlands and the western front, according to an official French compilation published today. This figure, it was declared, included 34 shot down by French anti-aircraft guns and 88 by French and British airplanes in France and Belgium.

Bern, Switzerland—(P)—United States diplomatic representatives today took charge of the repatriation of Belgian diplomats in Germany and the Germans in Belgium. Two special trains were prepared at Lundau and Pontarlier to take them home.

London—(P)—An air ministry communique tonight said British fighters had shot down more than "40 more" German airplanes and "successfully" bombed German columns in Belgium and Luxembourg.

London—(P)—The admiralty announced today that British warships had bombed German parachute troops who landed on the North sea coast of the lowland countries.

Belgrade, Yugoslavia—(P)—A high Yugoslav source reported today "all security measures" including putting 700,000 troops on war footing, had been taken in Yugoslavia to guard against possible entrance of Italy into the European conflict.

Berlin—(P)—DNE, official German news agency, said the German occupation of Groningen province in northern Holland was completed today when German forces advanced everywhere to the Zuider Zee (IJssel Meer), first reached yesterday at Harlingen.

Willemstad, Dutch West Indies—(P)—British troops were landed here today from a troopship under the agreement among Holland, Britain and France for measures to guard the oil refineries of Curacao and nearby Aruba against possible German attempts at sabotage.

Germans Try to Extend Breach in Albert Canal Area

MANY AIR RAIDS

French and Nazis Fight Along France-Luxembourg Border

BULLETIN

London—(P)—Queen Wilhelmina of Holland arrived tonight in England.

The queen came to England aboard a British warship amid reports of "fifth column" plots to kidnap the royal family.

Paris—(P)—Germany pushed her attack against the Netherlands and Belgium with redoubled violence today as French reinforcements rushed to aid the besieged lowlands, the French high command reported in a communique.

The enemy attack was reported to be particularly severe in the region of the Albert canal, apparently in an effort to widen the breach already forced in the canal fortifications which make up a vital part of Belgium's defense system.

The Germans also threw heavy concentrations into the sector southeast of Tirlemont, which is only 25 miles east of Brussels.

Other major points in the renewed Nazi drive, the French communique said, were in the Belgian Ardennes mountains, which face German-occupied Luxembourg, and in the region between the Albert canal and the lower Rhine.

French artillery spokesmen declared, however, that the German advance through southern Holland and Belgium appeared to be checked.

An official French compilation said the Germans lost 400 airplanes in the first three and one-half days of the drive against the lowland countries.

Daladier in Belgium

A war ministry spokesman announced that Edouard Daladier, member of the war cabinet and minister of national defense arrived in Belgium yesterday.

The spokesman said the French war minister, accompanied by high British and French officials, was received by King Leopold III of Belgium and visited outposts along the Belgian-French frontier.

The war ministry spokesman said the action in which French advance guards were backing up the Belgians in their fight against tremendous German thrusts in the Tongres region and the Belgian Ardennes was the prelude to a gigantic battle which might be expected in the next day or two, when the main body of the allied forces will be in position.

On the French main front, a full German division was stopped in an attack east of the Moselle river, the spokesman said.

Battle at Frontier

A French armored car unit stopped a German column in the Tongres region yesterday as the Germans sought to press on to the west after capturing the Dutch city of Maastricht. Tongres is 10 miles west of Maastricht.

In Belgium's Ardennes mountains, German units launched a vigorous thrust with forces spread out along a line from east to west.

In Holland the Germans continued to apply pressure along the River IJssel, which they succeeded in crossing at several points, the spokesman said. But he added that German parachute troops who landed in Holland had been rounded up and that the situation in general seemed improved.

Hope to Halt Attack

French dispatches called the German drive "the greatest attack in history," but expressed confidence it could be checked now that the main allied forces were entering the lines.

Troops in the great French series of Maginot line fortresses fought off a series of German attacks which lengthened the battle region to 300 miles.

310,000 to be Under Arms in U. S. During August Maneuvers

Washington—(P)—The war department estimated today that approximately 310,000 officers and men of the regular army, national guard and reserve corps would be under arms during the August maneuvers.

The figure, officials said, is an all-time high for peacetime training activities. The maneuver plans were announced in anticipation of congressional appropriation of the necessary funds, estimated at $6,000,000.

Secretary Woodring explained that heretofore it had been customary to hold maneuvers in only one army area each year, but that "in the present state of the world" it was considered advisable to hold exercises in all four areas.

Regular army units now in the southeast are to return to home stations late this month and then engage in training of civilian components—ROTC, CMTC and organized reserves—and then join with the national guard and reserve officers in the August exercises.

Roosevelt Drive Gains Momentum With War's Spread

Iowa Added to States Whose Delegates are Pledged to FDR

Washington — (P)—The campaign to re-nominate President Roosevelt swept ahead today amid mounting capital opinion that the European war spread had increased the possibility of his running again.

Many politicians in Washington have felt for months that the president's ultimate announcement of his third-term views would depend in large measure on the foreign situation.

For this reason they are more ready than ever to believe that he will withhold a statement accepting or rejecting re-nomination until it actually has been tendered, or at least until the eve of the Democratic convention July 15.

Iowa was added Saturday night to the states whose Democratic delegations have been pledged to Mr. Roosevelt. The 22 Iowa votes will go to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace "If for any reason the president is unavailable."

Instructed for Roosevelt

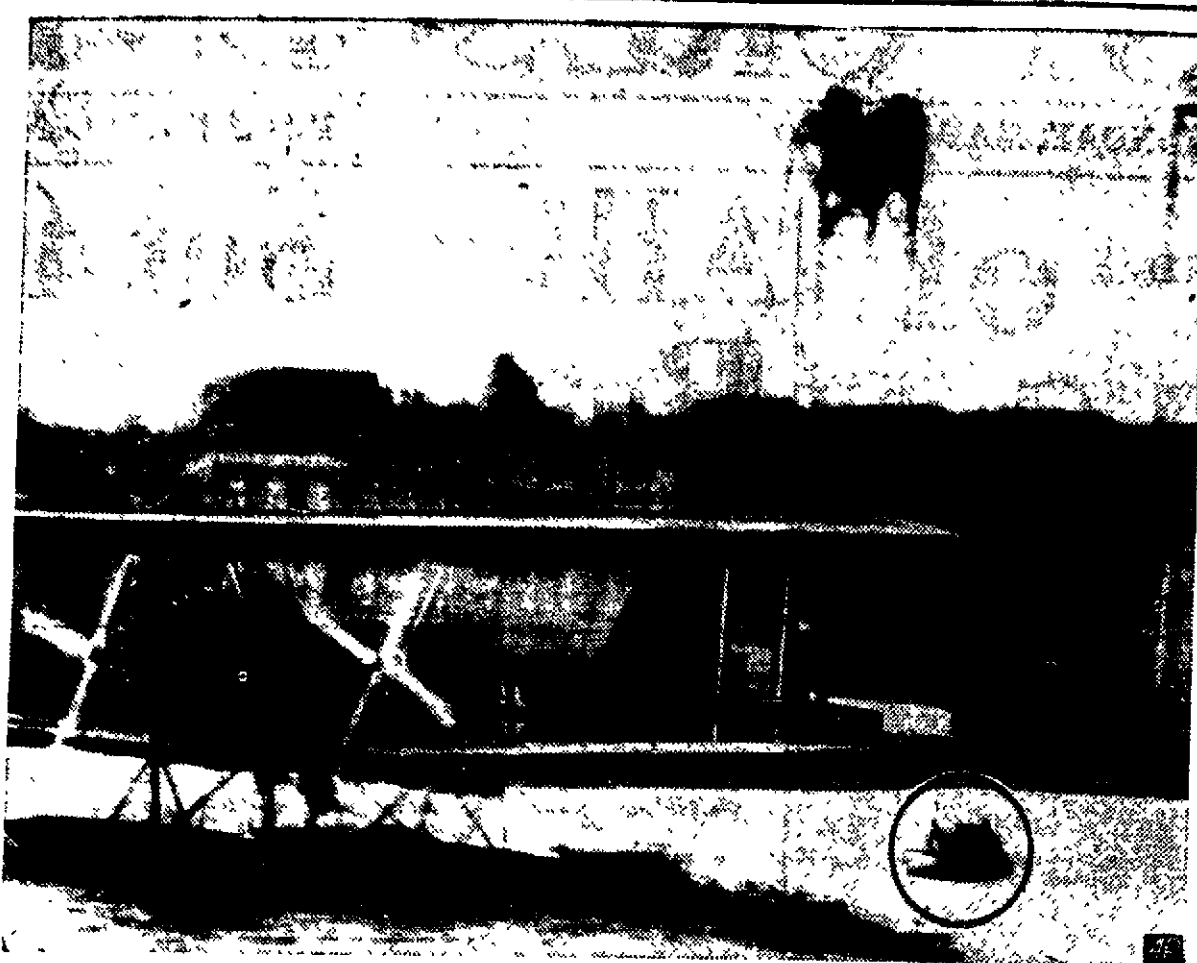

On the same day, a majority of county delegates for the forthcoming Oklahoma and North Carolina state conventions were instructed to vote for a Roosevelt slate.

The president is expected to receive the support of the big Ohio delegation to be chosen in a primary tomorrow, although it will be pledged nominally to national committeeman Charles Sawyer.

Ohio Republicans will select a delegation favoring Robert A. Taft, the state's junior senator.

Although 17 states and the District of Columbia will choose delegates to one or both party conventions this week, only two besides Ohio—West Virginia and Oregon—use the primary election method. The others are by convention.

Interest in West Virginia voting has centered on battles for the Democratic senatorial and gubernatorial nominations rather than on the presidential primary, where no major candidates are in either party. Rush Holt, the youngest senator, is seeking Democratic re-nomination.

Next 24 Hours May Tell Story Of What Is Termed by Allies, Nazis as Unprecedented Clash

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

New York — (P)—The Hitlerian blitzkrieg thus far has been met by the defenders with probably better-than-normal expectancy.

The battle crisis was growing this morning but the allies, having performed the essential task of preventing the nazis from overrunning the two little neutrals in the first few hours, can gather satisfaction from their own steadily-increasing strength.

Every hour now that the allies are able to hold the attack raises their powers of resistance through arrivals of Anglo-French reinforcements.

The next 24 hours are likely to be crucial in what both the German and French press today agreed was the greatest attack in history.

The nazis increased the fury of their assault in an effort to achieve a quick success. Herr Hitler would appear to have gambled everything on a speed which would give him another Norwegian triumph.

May be Turning Point

This may easily be the turning point of the whole war.

A German failure to break through in the immediate future and achieve the objectives of their blitzkrieg may cost them the war. I don't mean that the conflict would necessarily end at once, but the end would be in sight.

Obviously the thing cuts both ways, and a great nazis success now would leave the allies in a desperate position.

The Germans this morning would seem to have summed up their achievements rather accurately. They claim to be swarming over most of the northern half of the Netherlands, to control Luxembourg completely, and to have cut through the Belgian defenses above the heavily fortified Liege sector.

The immediate objectives of the Germans are the establishment of air (and submarine) bases on the Dutch coast, and apparently the turning of the allied left flank.

The setting up of air and submarine bases among the islands and in regular points of land which jut out from the jagged Dutch coast between the mouths of the Lek, Waal, Maas and Scheldt rivers not only would permit of a heavy onslaught on the allied blockade and commercial shipping, but the bombing of England.

Would Turn Wing

I assume from the attention which the nazis high command is paying to the Liege-Maastricht district at the junction of the Dutch-Belgian-German frontiers, that they are attempting to break through as they did in the World war and turn the left wing of the allied front.

If successful, this would enable them to roll the allied army back towards the south and bring the nazis to the channel ports opposite England.

The much-talked-of invasion of Britain might then become a nightmarish possibility. Certainly the Germans would be able to undertake to give the British the blood-bath from the air which Berlin has been talking so much about.

The Liege fortifications represent the strongest point in the Belgian "Maginot" line because, forsooth, it is the most vital.

Just as this was being written the Germans issued a claim to capture of the citadel to the great Liege fortress, which played such a momentous part in holding up the first rush of the Germans at the outbreak of the World war. This doesn't necessarily mean the collapse of the entire system of Liege defenses.

Thorough Preparation

From the speed with which the Germans struck it is obvious that they were working from plans which had been prepared thoroughly over a long period. As in the case of Norway, Herr Hitler placed much reliance on his "fifth column," especially in Holland.

This latest display gives us a rather complete picture of the effect of nazis organizations in foreign countries. The nazis now have shown their hand in Austria, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Danzig, Norway, Denmark, the Netherlands and Belgium.

These are apart from the near revolution in Rumania at the outbreak of the war, and difficulties caused in numerous other countries by nazis agents and nazis parties created among citizens.

All the nazis organizations have proved to be agents of the fatherland, ready to strike at the government of the country in which they reside if and when the fatherland gave the order.

attacks, and it appeared that except for the break at Maastricht the Belgians were still holding the Albert canal line.

A Belgian communique said the Germans had attempted to cross the canal by means of boats at one point but had been beaten back by heavy fire.

The communique disclosed that French troops now are fighting beside their new Belgian allies in the front lines.

"A French counter-attack against enemy motorized units was successful," it said. "A great number of enemy tanks was destroyed."

Roads Clogged

Roads leading north from the French border were choked with refugees moving up to the front and the government maintained strict supervision over the civilian exodus from Brussels to prevent its interfering with the movement of these reinforcements.

The capital, already attacked from the air a half-dozen times, was subjected to numerous air-raid alarms yesterday in Louvain and Antwerp, which also have been bombed, sirens screamed frequent warnings.

Beyond the lines Belgian troops were kept busy mopping up German parachute troops which were dropped in widely scattered areas during the weekend.

German aerial activity was heavy, and troops concentrations and lines of communications were subjected to a heavy rain of bombs.

It was estimated officially that 20 nazis planes had been shot down over Belgian territory yesterday, and at least 100 were destroyed.

Morale Unbroken

Foreign Minister Paul Henri Spaak told correspondents that while the situation was serious the government was not discouraged and that morale remained high.

The faces of the civilian population in Brussels, however, reflected the general feeling of anxiety as scattered reports filtered back from the front.

It was obvious that developments of the last few days had awakened memories of the last war when the Germans entered Brussels just 16 days after first crossing the Belgian frontier.

Premier Pierlot said the Germans effected their first crossing of the Albert canal Saturday opposite Maastricht, which is about 15 miles north of Liege.

Nazis Gain Foothold

He said the officer in charge of this sector was killed by an aerial bomb before he was able to carry out orders to destroy two bridges across the canal. The second-in-command hesitated to execute the assignment, and in the interval, German motorized units poured across the waterway, gaining a foothold from which they were able to break through the Belgian defenses.

Later, Pierlot said, a Belgian officer made a suicide dash through the German lines and blew up one of the bridges.

The German drive westward through the break in the Albert canal defenses was supported by "an enormous mass of tanks and aircraft," Pierlot said.

Despite "force resistance," the premier declared, the nazis column pushed through Tongeren (Tongres).

NAME OFFICERS

Kenosha — (P)—The Southern Wisconsin council of B'nai B'rith lodges, holding its semi-annual meeting yesterday, elected Ronald Padway of Milwaukee as president and A. L. Sklar of Madison vice president. Milwaukee was chosen host for the October meeting.

Fighting Continues

Warfare is about 40 miles west of the Belgian-German frontier. To reach this point, however, the Germans actually traveled less than twenty miles across Belgian territory, for they began their advance from the Dutch "appendix" province of South Limburg, which juts into the northeast corner of Belgium.

Heavy fighting was reported continuing in the southern Belgian province of Luxembourg, near the French frontier, where strong German forces attacked east of the Maas (Meuse) river. Premier Pierlot said Belgian troops had made strategic withdrawals at several points in this area.

The Belgian high command made no estimate of losses, but the Brussels railway stations were crowded with wounded and it was conceded that casualties were heavy.

The German ambassador and his staff left the capital for Berlin Saturday night.

Socialist - Labor Party Opposed to War's Extension

Wisconsin Group Selects Slate of Candidates For Fall Election

Milwaukee — (P)—The Wisconsin state convention of the Socialist-Labor party adopted yesterday a resolution proclaiming that it was "the duty of the proletarians" to oppose extension of the European war.

The party also endorsed a slate of candidates for the state election. In part, the resolution said:

"Resolved, that it is the solemn duty of all proletarians to hasten the advent of socialism, which alone can establish a lasting and amicable order of things in international relations, now delivered over to capitalist anarchy, imperialist rivalry, and to the furies of jingoism, and be it finally

"Resolved, that in accordance with the Marxian principle that every working class must consummate the revolution to Socialism in its own country, we call upon the working class of America to avert the impending involvement of America in the European war by organizing politically to demand the abolition of private ownership, the cause of imperialist war, and into a mighty, integral, socialist industrial union to enforce the collective mandate."

"By organizing for the abolition of wage slavery alone can the American working class serve notice that it will not be hurled into this stupid and sanguinary conflict of capitalist imperialism."

Adolph Wiggert, Milwaukee, was nominated a candidate for United States senator; Louis Fisher, Milwaukee, for governor; Alex Schutfeberger, Gleason, for lieutenant governor; Arthur Wepler, Milwaukee, for secretary of state; Ferdinand Schnarsky, Merrill, for state treasurer, and Arnold Fortman, Milwaukee, for attorney general.

any revised estimates of armaments. Administration quarters had indicated that this and a demand for speeding up munitions manufacture were embodied in war department recommendations submitted to Mr. Roosevelt for weekend study.

Asked whether the president's message might cover the subject of upward revision of the $45,000,000 limit on the public debt to cover expanded defense appropriations, he said he knew nothing about it, but assumed this was a point on which treasury and budget officials would advise the chief executive.

The senate heard demands for army expansion as soon as it convened after a weekend recess.

Senators Lodge (R-Mass.), Connally (D-Texas) and Lee (D-Okla.) all urged that the army be increased to a size sufficient to protect the entire western hemisphere.

In the house, Representative Bulwinkle (D-N. C.) proposed legislation to permit the allied nations to buy on credit in this country all goods, except "arms, ammunition and implements of war," specifically banned in neutrality proclamations. It would alter those portions of the neutrality law and the Johnson act which forbid credits in this country to belligerents or to any nation in default to the United States.

But Representative Firth (R-N. Y.) told the house that "the only thanks we received for our huge loans to our former allies was to be called Uncle Shylock and to have all nations repudiate these war loans except little honest Finland."

Communists Choose Election Candidates

Milwaukee — (P)—The Communist party nominated Fred Bassett Blair, of Milwaukee, as its candidate for governor at a state convention held here yesterday.

Ted Furman of the town of Oshkosh, Winnebago county, was chosen to run for United States senator.

Dalton Johnson of Kenosha and Alfred Kaartinen of Hurley were announced as the party's congressional candidates from the first and tenth districts respectively.

Other candidates will be nominated later.

'Nerve Gas' Which Penetrates Masks May be Nazi 'Surprise Weapon' Used in Belgian Drive

Bern, Switzerland — (P)—A "nerve gas" which penetrates ordinary gas masks and renders its victims helpless and unable to coordinate their muscles may be the "surprise weapon" which enabled the Germans to drive an opening wedge into the Belgian defense lines.

That belief was expressed today by neutral military attaches to Switzerland, through whose hands passes a great deal of the war's military information.

They said a gas of this type had been developed in Germany and studied in other countries in recent months, and that soldiers inhaling it would be overcome by lassitude and would stagger and fall.

(Howard Blakeslee, Associated Press science editor, reports that the American Chemical society at a meeting two years ago suggested that liquid acetyl choline, if it came in contact with a wound or break in the skin, would make a soldier unconscious for as long as an hour.)

(However, says Blakeslee, there were no suggestions as to how the chemical, which appears naturally in the human body in extremely small amounts, might be adapted to causing unconsciousness through inhalation.)

The military experts explained that the gas, said to leave no ill after-effects, to be almost impossible to detect but to smell faintly like geraniums, would be effective against the Belgian garrison at Fort Eben Emael because they were equipped only with standard army filter masks.

They added that such a gas undoubtedly would be more effective in this type fort than in the better-munited fortifications, such as those in the French Maginot line.

Blakeslee says the function of acetyl choline is not fully known, but that it plays a part in the nerves' work of transmitting impulses to the muscles, and that a few drops placed on a scratch in the skin cause unconsciousness within a few moments.

Such an application, however, leaves no bad after-effects.

The surprise element involved would lie in the ability of the newly-developed gas to penetrate all present-day types of masks.

Direct nerve poisons are included among the standard gases. They affect the heart action and nerve reflexes or interfere with absorption and assimilation of oxygen in the body after the blood picks it up from the lungs.

Two found in the United States handbook of chemical warfare are hydrocyanic acid and carbon monoxide.

Antigo Youth Given 1 to 5 Year Sentence

Fond du Lac — (P)—Circuit Judge Clayton F. Van Pelt imposed a one to five year Green Bay reformatory sentence Saturday on Charles J. Kohel, 22-year-old Antigo farm youth charged with obtaining money under false pretenses.

Kohel had been convicted by a jury last Wednesday on 12 counts of obtaining $3,607 from Miss Mary Ford, Fond du Lac spinster, on the present-day types of masks.

Kohel denied there had been any fraudulent representation. He declared he received the money, during a six-month period last summer and fall, in the form of loans.

WHERE SHOTGUN BLASTS KILLED TWO

The sheet covered form of William Van Camp, 31, route 1, Kaukauna, can be seen in the above picture in the rear entrance of his farm home where he fell dead when he was met by a blast from a heavy gauge shotgun fired by an unknown assailant late Saturday night. His mother, Mrs. Annie Van Camp, 77, was murdered in her bed and Dr. H. E. Ellsworth, Outagamie county coroner is shown at the upper left as he sat by her bedside when county authorities launched their investigation of the double slaying early Sunday morning. The next picture at the top shows a rifle leather purse found on top of the dresser in Mrs. Van Camp's bedroom. Below is the open wardrobe closet where, members of the family said, Mrs. Van Camp habitually kept the purse in a small drawer. The map at the far left shows the location of the farmhouse and the picture beside it shows John Verkuilen, a neighbor employed on the Van Camp property, who discovered the bodies. Fond du Lac Man Is State Chairman of AP

Milwaukee —(P)—The Associated Press members of Wisconsin elected Carl Keyser, of the Fond du Lac Commonwealth Reporter, as their state chairman at a semi-annual meeting here Saturday. Frank Lovell, of the Racine Journal-Times, was chosen vice chairman.

Major Mixson to See U. S. Army Maneuvers

Major A. M. Mixson, national guard instructor stationed at Appleton, will leave Saturday by automobile for Louisiana where he will attend the United States army maneuvers on the Louisiana-Texas border. The major will start a month's leave of absence Saturday and will spend the remaining three weeks at a cottage on Miner lake, Waupaca.

Harry J. Grant who was elected an Associated Press director at the annual meeting in New York last April, addressed the meeting. Grant is board chairman of the Milwaukee Journal company.

The members voted to hold an annual contest-exhibition of photographs submitted by the member papers.

Unknown Killer Murders Mother And Youngest Son

Mrs. Van Camp's bedroom. A small drawer in a clothes closet, where members of the family said Mrs. Van Camp habitually kept the purse, was found ajar. A member of the family said he had no idea of the amount of money in the wardrobe closet drawer. He said his mother kept money there when she was saving to pay a bill but the amount varied. A paper box containing a few small coins also was found on the dresser.

A 12-gauge shotgun was found in a corner of William's bedroom along with some other guns but authorities doubted it was the murder weapon because, they said, they did not believe it had been fired recently. However the gun was taken and is being checked for fingerprints.

Verkuilen said he arose about 2 o'clock Sunday morning and noticed lights at the Van Camp home. This, he thought at the time, was unusual because the Van Camps usually retired early and seldom were up later than 12 o'clock. He said he mentioned it to his wife but thought no more of it until William failed to appear in the morning. The lights were still burning when he discovered the bodies.

A large shepherd dog, which neighbors said was a good watchdog, was tied about 30 yards from the farmhouse.

Jury Views Bodies
Sheriff John Lappen said today that autopsies performed Sunday at St. Elizabeth hospital showed the mother and son were slain by shells containing No. 4 shot, the size usually used in duck and rabbit hunting.

A coroner's jury viewed the bodies about 10 o'clock Sunday morning and Raymond P. Dohr, district attorney, announced today the inquest probably will be held Thursday afternoon at the courthouse. On the coroner's jury are Phil Leonhardt, Ben Schraml, Wilfred Trepamer, H. P. Van Dyke, Edward Vandenberg and John Scholl, all of route 1, Kaukauna.

Both the mother and son were born in Freedom, the mother in 1863 and the son in 1909. Mrs. Van Camp was a member of the St. Therese society of St. Nicholas Catholic church, Freedom. William was a member of the St. Therese society and the Holy Name society.

Survivors of Mrs. Van Camp are six sons, Joseph and Frank, route 1, Kaukauna; John, route 2, Kaukauna; Henry, route 2, Appleton; Clarence, rural route, Little Chute; Jacob, route 4, Seymour; and Mrs. Michael Whitman, route 2, Appleton. William was unmarried.

The funeral cortege will leave the Greenwood funeral home, Kaukauna, at 8:15 Wednesday morning and funeral services will be held at 9 o'clock at St. Nicholas church, Freedom. The Rev. A. W. Van Dyke, pastor, will be in charge and burial will be in the parish cemetery. Prayer services will be held at the Greenwood funeral home at 8 o'clock tonight and Tuesday night.

Investigating the double murder were Sheriff John Lappen, District Attorney Raymond P. Dohr, Dr. Ellsworth, Undersheriff Fred Frank, and Jack Frenz, county motorcycle officer.

SLOWER-BURNING CAMELS

"FASTEST PLANE off the production line today!" That's how Homer Berry describes the Bell Airacobra, amazing new speed plane. He should know. This veteran speed test pilot started flying in 1913...started smoking Camels the same year. "No other cigarette ever gave me anything like the pleasure of a Camel," he says. "They burn slower, smoke milder and cooler."

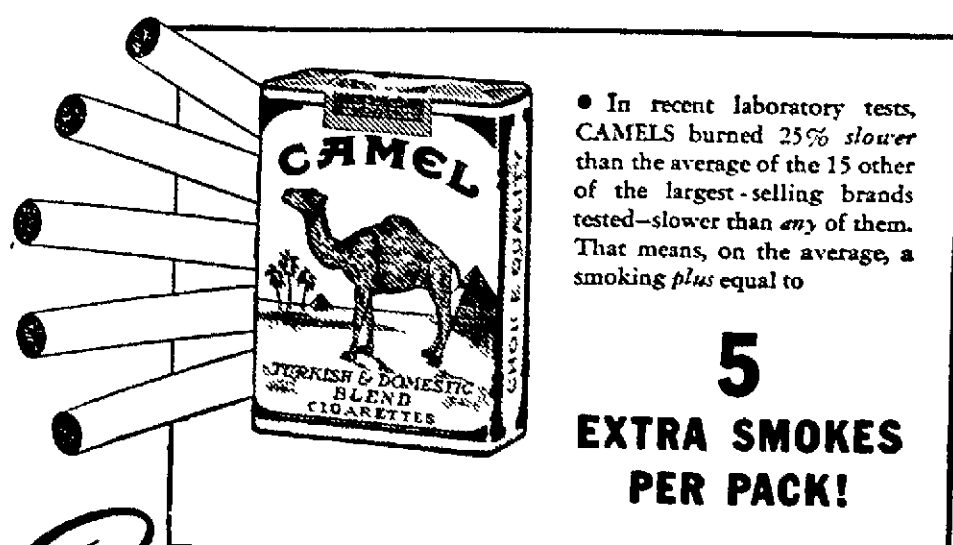

Camels don't irritate my throat and their full, rich flavor doesn't tire my taste. In 26 years, that slower burning has given me a lot of extra smoking. Before you take it for granted you're getting all the pleasure there is in a cigarette, try Camels. Enjoy the advantages of Camel's slower-burning costlier tobaccos. Penny for penny your best cigarette buy!

Smokers who live in communities where certain state cigarette taxes are in effect can save the cost of the tax—and, in some instances, more—through smoking Camels. (See panel at right.) When you are a Camel smoker, you get this unique economy—and all the extra enjoyment of and all the extra smoking—the cooler, milder smoking—the fragrance and delicate taste of finer, more costly tobaccos.

"No fast burning for me in my cigarette. I've smoked Camels ever since there have been any Camels. They burn slower and give me more pleasure per puff and more puffs per pack. I'd walk a mile for a slow-burning Camel!"

In recent laboratory tests, CAMELS burned 25% slower than the average of the 15 other of the largest-selling brands tested—slower than any of them. That means, on the average, a smoking plus equal to miles, from the northern border of the Netherlands, through Belgium, Luxembourg and along the main French front.

Aerial activity remained intense, with the French command claiming destruction of 30 German planes in France Sunday.

Paris had two air raid alarms early today, one for an hour shortly after midnight and the second for 35 minutes at 6:35 a. m.

There also were alarms in western and central France during the morning. Residents of Nancy, where German planes struck Friday and Saturday, were kept in shelters by one alarm after another most of Sunday.

Parisians Leave

Voluntary departure from Paris again was underway as in the first days of war, last September. About one-third of the city's usual population of 3,000,000 already were in the country, and many more were following.

The closing hour for cafes, restaurants and theaters in Paris was changed from midnight to 11 p. m. (Germany also ordered restaurants closed at 11 p. m. starting Tuesday, authorized German sources commenting that the population ought to be concentrating on victory instead of idling at that hour.)

Developments of the last few days left no doubt that the German paratroopers who drop behind the lines have become a major factor in modern warfare.

The allies' answer to the mass use of these gunners from the skies is the creation of vigilante units and mop-up squads as a sort of interior militia.

Need Counter Moves

The German daredevil exploits in Belgium and the Netherlands already have convinced the allies that a counter-organization is necessary.

The parachute troops' principal value appeared to be to create confusion in the interior and to seize airbases by surprise, holding them until troop transport planes could land.

Their use for sabotage also was recognized and the British were reported organizing special machine-gun motorcycle patrols to guard the homeland.

While varied dispatches told of parachute troops disguised as peasants, as low country soldiers and even as clergymen, France announced that any soldier caught in civilian clothes or in a French uniform would be summarily shot.

One Dutch dispatch said parachute soldiers carried small wireless transmitters to signal front-line positions to the German main forces.

Loss of 100 American Lives In Lusitania Sinking Made War Headlines 25 Years Ago

BY VIOLA HELLERMANN

Newspaper stories about the fighting between the allies and the Turks at the Dardanelles, a German expedition toward the Russian Baltic province and skirmishes on the western front were becoming a humdrum with their daily recurrence in early May, 1915. Twenty-five years ago this month, when American readers were startled with extra and banner headlines proclaiming the sinking of the Lusitania.

It happened the afternoon of May 7, 1915, about 10 miles off the coast of Ireland. More than 1,000 lives were lost, over 100 of them Americans. Although it was one of a series of events generally credited with bringing the United States into the war two years later the American government seemed to take little notice at the time. In a speech at Philadelphia three days after the tragedy, President Wilson said, "There is such a thing as a nation being so right that it does not need to convince others by force that it is right."

On May 1, the day the Lusitania sailed from New York, scores of prominent passengers, among them Alfred Vanderbilt, found anonymous telegrams awaiting them at the pier giving warning that the Lusitania would be sunk on her trip to Liverpool. None of them cancelled passage, however. Newspapers apparently also gave little credence to the warning, for the story was a very little prominence.

Six days later, however, came the news that the great trans-Atlantic liner, member of the British Cunard line, actually had been sunk. The big fishing fleet at work off Kin-sale, Ireland, was the first to reach the sinking liner, and the first fragmentary reports that came to the United States on May 7 indicated that all persons had been saved.

Only 700 Saved
But on the next day came the staggering report that only 700 of 2,000 passengers on the Lusitania had been saved.

Branding the Lusitania a British man-of-war Dr. Bernard Dernburg, unofficial spokesman for the Kaiser in the United States charged that England carried Americans on the ship as shields for an immense cargo of British munitions of war.

In England, it was denied that the ship was armed. Early in the war.

general disinclination for anything that would draw the United States into the struggle.

Commenting editorially on President Wilson's statement at Philadelphia, the Appleton Daily Post declared:

"From what the president said it was gathered that this country would not go to war with Germany over the Lusitania incident, nor even probably that diplomatic relations would be broken off."

"Whatever may be thought of the effectiveness of this course, it must be recognized that this country is in no condition to go to war. One thing ought to be clear, however, from the Lusitania incident, and that is that this country ought not to let a moment pass before beginning the work of putting herself in such condition of preparedness for eventualities as to make her words or protests respected by foreign nations."

The Appleton Evening Crescent, however, applauded "President Wilson's determination to pursue the even tenor of his way and his refusal to be stampeded into 'butting in' in China or Europe." Although the editor expressed horror at the sinking of the Lusitania without giving the passengers time to escape, he blamed the tragedy on the "new sea rule first promulgated by Great Britain and then adopted by Germany in retaliation."

MOTHER IS ILL
Superior — Senator Lewis Schwellenbach of Washington arrived here by airplane late yesterday in response to a message that his mother was seriously ill.

Mrs. Martha Schwellenbach of Seattle Wash. has been visiting since last fall at the home of a brother, Fred A. Baxter, former mayor of Superior.

That Americans were against entering the war then as they are now was evidenced in a story which came from Washington on May 10, 1915, declaring that messages received at the capital from throughout the United States indicated a

"Of the Dutch coast, a cruiser was heavily damaged by bomb hits. One cruiser of the Southampton class (British) as well as a transport of 15,000 tons were sunk and seven more supply ships were hit and set afire."

"In central Norway, reinforcements have been sent to German troops operating at Moegen and Mo. The group at Narvik stands in the defense fight against a far superior enemy force."

How the Germans took the Liege citadel was not told immediately. But Germany's armies, hammering wedges into both Belgium's and Holland's defenses, have used a mysterious new weapon which, in the German opinion, may be the key to the French Maginot line fortifications.

It is credited with having caused the easy downfall of Eben Emael fortress, one of the strongest in the Liege-Albert canal defense zone, a break in Belgian defenses which opened the way to Liege itself.

A garrison of 1,000 Belgians laid down their arms in the face of the secret Nazi weapon, it was reported.

Hollister was appointed Sept. 12, 1938, and again on March 28, 1939. In each instance he was dismissed by State Treasurer John M. Smith before six month probationary periods expired.

Following the second dismissal Sept. 26, 1939, Hollister appealed to Dane county circuit court for reinstatement. Judge Reis announced the decision Saturday.

Do you want to get a loan quickly and simply? At Household Finance you can borrow $20 to $300 without endorsers or guarantors, if you can make regular monthly payments. From the table below you may choose the payment plan which fits your own purse. You may repay a small amount each month. Or you may make larger payments in order to pay up sooner.

Choose your own payment plan

Suppose that you need a $100 loan. You find this amount in the first column of the table. Then read across picking out the monthly payment which you wish to make. You will find, for instance, that monthly payments of $9.77 each will repay a $100 loan in full in twelve months. Or, if you wish smaller payments, as little as $6.43 a month for twenty months will also repay a $100 loan.

ENGLAND'S NEW GOVERNMENT

The resignation of Chamberlain was an attempted appeasement of public opinion. The former prime minister did not arouse the necessary enthusiasm and singleness of purpose that are essential to victory.

And yet, strange as it may appear, the very reason why he was so loudly denounced, his failure to send great forces to Norway, may be the salvation of British arms now that great forces are needed in Belgium and Holland.

But Winston Churchill, an Englishman too great to become prime minister in peace, just as our greatest men have little chance of becoming president under ordinary circumstances, is more likely to strike the ordinary Briton as a glorious war leader because of his combination of sagacity and courage, stubborn determination and iron will. At least today he is Britain's hope and salvation, its sheet anchor in a raging tempest that may outblow anything the empire has ever known.

Mr. Churchill's new cabinet includes appointments from the three important political parties in the country. This is not only the way of wisdom but such a cabinet should exist in every democracy that has its back to the wall.

High principled men are not swayed by politics when their country's interests are jeopardized by what they consider ruthless attack. And the postponement of the usual political controversies by centering all the nation's parties and leaders upon the task of finishing the war is certainly the best way to terminate it quickly and competently.

It is to be noted, however, that men like Churchill and Anthony Eden, who are now in the seats of the mighty, were the men whose alert senses foresaw the danger as soon as Hitler came to power. But other statesmen, and the people generally, would not listen to Churchill's warning of what was coming nor to Eden when he refused to back down before Mussolini.

This is no reflection upon the English people. It is common to all people. A people's government always tries to go the easiest way, take the easiest course, avoid even thinking of the dangerous future and snuggle the head in the pillows instead of examining the noises downstairs.

Churchill and Eden weren't popular in England when they told the unwelcome truth. But the English people, in despair at their own folly, now seek out their strong men to protect them.

TICKLE THEM ON THE WRISTS

Senator Norris keeps insisting that the Federal Bureau of Investigation handled some Detroit Reds in a way inconsistent with our methods of justice.

Although the Nebraska has been a pretty reasonable man it is evident that he has finally succumbed to some extent to the prevailing Washington fever. It is rather significant that as others lately have been concealing this fever, and the red rash that goes with it, the gentleman from Nebraska has just caught up to it.

Under the great self-baptized liberal leader it became popular at Washington to affectionately embrace the Reds, which action the Roosevelt administration treated as a test of democracy. The idea was rather condescending, something like the society dames who think they have established a charitable nature by visiting a while in the world of the demimonde.

The whole side show is just a fracas designed as exhibitionism even if some men participate in it without quite understanding what they are doing.

And the result has been to give these Reds, many of whom should have been under restraint in psychopathic wards, fat positions in the government or places of conspicuous prominence and influence along the public avenues. As a result most of these Reds, who had little head enough to begin with, lost what they had and abandoned entirely any decent respect for the laws of this country and embarked upon careers which have been successful only when directed by tyrants.

We see no difference in the claimed conduct of the FBI toward the Detroit Reds than their admitted conduct before the New York Christian Frontiers. Putting handcuffs on prisoners or arresting them in the night time is neither cruel nor extraordinary.

Perhaps the Nebraska would have Mr. Hoover and his aides apologize to any Communists against whom warrants are sworn out. The argument is getting just about as extreme as that.

THE QUESTION OF CIVILIAN BOMBING

General world opinion toward the bombing of civilians is suitably expressed by many kindly though not always practical people. No doubt opinion has crystallized very strongly against the horror of wrecked homes and the mangled bodies of children and the aged.

But there is another side to this question that should be considered very fully in its possible effect upon future conflicts.

Why should the aged and the young be spared just for the purpose of centering all effort upon the destruction of the physically capable, the flower of a nation's manhood? Is it any worse to mangle a nursing child or an aged-gray-beard than to blow off the arm or leg of a 20-year-old youth? Do not the efforts to limit the havoc and dreadfulness of war tend to preserve war as an institution? How can we expect to abolish war, all other efforts having failed for 50 centuries, unless we tear its mask clear off and show its hollow eyes and shriveled heart in all their nakedness?

Dispatches of last week said that quite a number of civilians both in Germany and the allied countries had been mutilated or slain by bombs from the air. And there was talk of "five-fold" vengeance for this breach of international law and the rules of "humanity" in warfare. Next thing we know they may be trying to establish a rule that you can only bayonet a man through the throat and the right eye and you must leave his abdomen alone. Would it not be just as sensible?

The English people and the French people are responsible for their governments and therefore for their participation in this war. The German people chose Herr Hitler despite all the blood and thunder he promised in Mein Kampf and although they have been shorn of the ordinary rights of civilized people they are still responsible for their leadership and are empowered by revolution to end it. Why, then, should these people, the tens of millions who had willed war, be permitted to sit complacently at home while they pass laws sending their youth forth to be butchered? What sort of justice is there in that situation?

Homes that are located nearby railroads may excusably be bombed. Civilians who live near important junctions may excusably be torn to pieces. The children and the aged who live within a reasonable distance of munition plants, airbases, flying fields, fortresses or any other of the numerous spots that have a special value in warfare may be buried under the debris of their houses without complaint.

Just why shall such civilians suffer while others are protected by a special rule of warfare?

But the most important practical value to bombing civilians may be found in so increasing the horrors of war that those who have the responsibility of electing officials and supporting governments may consider that responsibility a good deal more seriously than heretofore.

The effort to shear war of some of its most cruel and vicious practices is motivated by good purposes, we know, but it isn't the first time that fine intentions had an effect opposite from that desired.

Why not lift the damp and clotted pall from off the cadaver? Why not let every person in the country realize that war is wholesale murder and that every country that loosens it jeopardizes its people to a taste of it at least upon the retail side?

Suppose 500 bombers dropped tons of explosives upon Cologne and Hamburg, Leipzig and Berlin—how long would this war last? Suppose the Germans retaliated in kind against their enemies—would the general result be a mere increase of destruction, a multiplication of anguish, or, irrespective of its operations in the pending conflict, would it not likely paralyze the voices raised for war in the future and seal the lips that speak of its glory? It would be interesting if we could ascertain the attitude of the people of Barcelona toward war for the great Spanish city had more experience in civilian bombing than any metropolis to date.

The people generally view the heart-rending agony, occasioned by civilian bombing. They do not view the same agony on the battlefield. But it is the same, nevertheless.

No one is going to prevent war upon this earth except the people. And the people will not act forcibly against it unless they come to know it firsthand for what it is.

A Verse for Today

"IT'S FUN TO BE ALIVE"

(For Jack Miner, Naturalist, Kingsville, Ontario)

"It's fun to be alive!" he says,
Striding across his pleasant fields.
The birds fly over his green ways;
Under his feet the warm ground yields.
The sun and rain have been his books;
His music is the song of birds.
The trees, the blossoms and the brooks
Have wooed him with their loving words.
"It's fun," he says, "to be alive!"
The pines he planted sway to him.
His years are seventy and five,
But never have his eyes grown dim.
He sees the wild geese coming back
To stop with him a little while.
He sees the rabbit's faintest track,
And greets the squirrel with a smile.
"It's fun to be alive!" His feet
Have always trod the ways of Right.
His deeds have been as clean as wheat;
He walks with head up in God's sight.
I hope that I can say with truth,
When my own ending days arrive,
With no regret for my lost youth,
"I think it's fun to be alive!"

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

Washington—In addition to the San Francisco fair the president has two "musts" on the sightseeing schedule of his transcontinental trip next month. They are King Canyon in California and Yosemite National park.

He revealed this to the delegation of California congressmen who protested the use of government-owned ships to transport cement and lumber to the Panama Canal zone from Atlantic ports. The Californians said this put Pacific coast dealers at an unfair disadvantage. Roosevelt promised to look into the matter and then the group asked him about his travelling plans for this summer.

He countered by inquiring when congress would adjourn, saying his trip depended upon that.

"We're willing to call it a day whenever you give the word," said Representative Ed Isaac of San Diego, echoed by Representatives Dick Welch and Frank Havenner of San Francisco. Roosevelt replied with a grin that he hoped the windup would be around June 10 or 12.

Although he refused to be drawn out on any "political plans" for the trip, he did reveal that he expected to take a southern route on the way west and return via the north, after visiting his daughter, Mrs. John Boettiger, in Seattle.

"I'm very anxious to spend some time in the national parks," he said, "particularly King Canyon and Yosemite. These beauty spots have always intrigued me, and I haven't had a leisurely trip for several years."

PRESIDENTIAL DERBY

There was one event on the Kentucky Derby program that not many people knew about. It occurred in the private car of general L. W. "Chip" Robert, secretary of the Democratic National Committee, when some of the big politicians got up a hat pool on the presidential race.

A total of $1,800 was placed in the Democratic pool for president and $1,800 in the Republican, with eight Democratic candidates, one Democratic dark horse, and eight Republican candidates plus a Republican dark horse.

The names were auctioned off to the highest bidder by Chip Robert, and the biggest prices on the Democratic side went to Roosevelt, Hull and Farley. They all sold for about the same price—around $225.

Three Republican candidates—Dewey, Taft and Vandenberg—also brought between $200 and $225. Justice Owens Roberts brought the lowest price on the Republican ticket, while Wendell Willkie was bought for next to nothing by John Traphagen, president of the Bank of New York and Trust Company.

The other Republican candidates were Bricker, Landon and Hoover; the other Democratic candidates, Garner, McNutt, Wheeler, Jesse Jones and Barkley.

Jesse Jones finally was bought in by a vice president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, which owes several million dollars to Jesse's Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

$60 FOR HOOVER

When Herbert Hoover's name first was mentioned the bidding was not enthusiastic. Finally someone bid $50.

"Fifty dollars I am offered for Hoover," barked auctioneer Robert. "Fifty dollars for Hoover! Are you going to let this fine presidential bargain go for only fifty dollars?"

"Sixty dollars," bid Vincent Bendix, donor of the Bendix aviation trophy, who was stinging, sleepy-eyed, in the corner.

"Sixty dollars," continued Robert. "Just listen, folks, here's Herbert Hoover going for $60! Are you going to let him be knocked down for $60? Going! Going!"

"Hey, wait a minute," shouted Bendix. "I thought I was bidding for J. Edgar Hoover."

"All right," countered Robert, "we'll throw in J. Edgar Hoover, Herbert Hoover and the Hoover vacuum people all for $75. Sold!"

Note—Names of the candidates and their purchases were carefully registered, and the money held for the election next November.

WAR NOTES

General Weygand already has moved about 70,000 men (Australians and Algerians) from French Syria through Istanbul to Turkish Thrace. This is within striking distance of Salonika and should enable him to get there first in case Mussolini decides to land at this key military port. . . . One reason the Allies are so cautious about Narvik is its railroad to Sweden, which could be used to send troops to that country if she were invaded. . . . For some time British warships have been concentrated off the Dutch coast, ready to give aid at any minute. . . . General Weygand has 8,000 motor trucks attached to his army in Syria—mute evidence that he figures he will have to do some fast traveling.

HITLER AND HUNGARY

Opinion toward Hitler inside Hungary is mixed—some opposed, some favoring a Nazi alliance which would help reconquer Transylvania from Romania.

But in Hungary a man who hates Hitler most, and in turn is hated most by Hitler, is the Regent, Admiral Horthy.

Two years ago, Hitler invited Horthy to visit him to discuss the idea of a Hungarian-German military alliance. Horthy, however, was cool. He pointed out that should Germany lose the next war she would not lose very much of her own territory, but that Hungary could lose much more. Her very small territory would be carved up into nothing.

Naturally, Hitler, accustomed to the fawning of other small European rulers, was irked, almost insulted. But the final insult came when Admiral Horthy was his guest at the German naval review at Kiel.

Hitler had launched some new ships, was building up a new navy, was proud of it. But when the Hungarian regent, who was an admiral in the old Austro-Hungarian navy, was asked what he thought of the German naval display, he replied:

"Pretty good for a beginner."

RAZING "COTTON ED"

Down in South Carolina, the home folks of "Cotton Ed" Smith have a mischievous sense of humor.

For several weeks the ebullient senator has issued razzing pronouncements of his determination to bolt the Chicago convention should it renominate Roosevelt. As a result, no one in the state has any doubt where "Cotton Ed" stands on the third term.

But when the leaders of Lee County, where he lives, met to name delegates to the state convention which this week will elect delegates to Chicago, the boys did two things: They chose Smith as one of the group. Then they turned around and instructed him to vote for a third term delegation at the state convention.

A Bystander In Washington

BY JACK STINNETT

Washington—The slap-and-scratch season soon will be with us. . . and I figured it's high time we got into the middle of the mosquito situation.

Wars may come and wars may go but the fall of the house of Oslo doesn't strike nearly as close to home as a cloud of whirling mosquitoes on THE night you and the best girl have gone to the lake for a picnic and a swim.

Sitting in Rock Creek park the other night, I slapped at a whining noise near the back of my neck. It might have been the first mosquito of the season. Like a diplomat caught in a corner, it refused to be interviewed. But just hearing it there gave me an idea and I popped in on the federal bureau of entomology today. They know more about mosquitoes than J. Edgar Hoover, Martin Dies, and the army and navy combined will ever know about nazis.

For example, Kipling couldn't possibly have written with so much fervor about the "female of the species" being more deadly than the male, if he hadn't had a brush with mosquitoes. As a matter of fact, it's the female mosquito that's afflicted with blood lust.

They Croon Of Love

The young men of the tribe are just winged Rudy Valleges and Bing Crosby who vo-de-de-o-deo about the summer night, trying to get the ladies to pay them some mind. And it's their little habit of going where the female humming is thickest that the bureau of entomology hopes will be their undoing.

The bureau is pushing a new electrical gadget which duplicates the siren love songs of the mosquito females. When the young men dash into the trap, the result is shocking. . . at least shocking enough to kill the love-sick swains. The theory is that if this wholesale electrocution system can kill off enough males, the queeries will be discouraged and the tribe will become extinct. It's a grand theory. I hope it works.

That wasn't all I learned from the bureau. Not only are the girl mosquitoes the only ones that attack man but only one of three families of girls is deadly.

If you're merely had a night out with the Culex and Aedes girls, the bureau tells me, you needn't worry. They are pests, it is true, and can raise hob and knobs on the skin you love to touch and yours, too, but they don't do serious damage.

She's A Changed Gal

Edie Aedis and her clan used to pack a kiss of death but science put a stop to that. They isolated the yellowjackets, suffered from them where Edie couldn't come up to see them anymore, which made a lady out of Edie. That applies only to this country. There are some nations where Edie still is doing business as Murder, Inc., but even there she's losing ground.

The Borgia of mosquitoes today is Anopheles. Annie is the girl who held up the building of the Panama canal. Her specialty is malaria. It wasn't until the U. S. army medical corps went to work on Annie—made her home untenable, destroyed her larvae by gillions—that workmen could work in Panama.

Only recently a flock of the girls (Anopheles Gambiae) hitch-hiked from Africa on a trans-Atlantic plane and started a serious outbreak of malaria in Brazil. That's why you'll find the bureau of entomology boys down at the airport, combing over every plane that comes in from South America.

It's Annie's sisters (including a recent debutante Anopheles Walker Theobald) down in the southland that do the most damage in the United States and malaria victims are so common there that it's impossible to hide them all. Annie has some kinfolks in the west, too, but they have a hard time finding malaria blood.

The bureau and medicine and education are making headway. The time may come when the Borgias of Mosquito-land may be as dead as the Borgias of history. But it's still a good idea to duck when you hear that hum-o-de-o, even if it's only Bing Mosquito crooning to a love-lorn mate.

Looking Backward

25 YEARS AGO

Monday, May 17, 1915

Six thousand Armenians were reported massacred at Van Armenia. The dispatch from Persia added that the Armenians were doing the utmost to defend themselves. An Athens dispatch said the Allies had occupied the Heights of Kritisia after desperate fighting with the Turks which lasted six hours. A border clash between Italian and Austrian troops was reported.

A letter from E. L. Bull, who accompanied William Strait of the Killen-Strait Manufacturing company to London to demonstrate the Appleton tractor, stated that they had made successful test before the British admiralty.

Advice from Los Angeles said that James Jeffries, former world champion boxer, was seriously ill with pneumonia and was not expected to live.

10 YEARS AGO

Monday, May 12, 1930

A total of 735 dog licenses had been issued by Fred Bachman, city treasurer.

The Wisconsin highway committee at a conference with the Brown county highway committee in Green Bay that week expressed full approval of the county's plan to widen Highway 41 between Green Bay and DePere to a width of 30 feet.

Lefty Ritten's sensational hurling and some big league support on the part of the other eight players on the club gave Appleton a 2 to 0 victory over its time-honored rival, Kimberly-Little Chute, the previous afternoon in an opening valley league game.

FATE OF GERMANY FOR THE NEXT 1,000 YEARS—HITLER

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—It is important to remember, in any consideration of the Wisconsin political scene in 1940 that there is only a remote chance that the Progressives will be in control of the state government this year.

The normal distribution of party strength, coupled with the number of hold over conservative members of the legislature, makes it highly improbable that there will be any change in policy in the administration of the capitol during the next two years.

The best that Progressives privately hope for, whatever they will be saying at their picnics and mass-meetings during the summer, is enough success in the legislative districts to qualify a Republican victory. They can win, the history of recent Wisconsin politics shows, a majority in the state assembly, and thus get in a position to nullify whatever effect a Republican state ticket victory may be expected to have. Conversely, even if the Progressive state ticket wins, the opposition will in all probability control the state senate, so that practical significance of such a victory will be negligible.

NEXT YEAR

It is of course presumptuous to predict the political character of the state administration next year. But the fact that there is a probability of divided control—and in recent years few political parties have been able to say that they have had complete control of the state government—is important because of the tasks which will inevitably face the state government in the next legislature. The job of the next legislature is going to be doubly hard, doubly important, because of the fact that the last legislature ducked it, and thus far, got away with it.

Although it seemed impossible when the legislature adjourned, the Heil administration has been able thus far to get along with only moderate increases in states taxes.

But the next legislature is going to be forced to face the music. New taxation, as far as the best students of state affairs can see today, is inevitable in 1941. The only uncertainty about it is the nature of the levy.

The state government today is employing deficit financing, just as certainly as is the government at Washington. The only difference is in degree and method. The state administration, as far as all the present evidence indicates, will spend more during the present biennium than it will take in, despite some increases in revenue. The diversion of highway funds, and the payment of state obligations in installments, is conclusive proof.

RESPONSIBILITY

It will be the responsibility of the next legislature and state administration to reckon with that fact. And there is hardly any chance, by present appearances, that the responsibility can be ducked again. That was the prerogative of previous administrations in the last decade. But those days are gone. The Kohler surplus is just a memory today.

Moreover, the cries for bigger pensions, for an adequate state relief budget, for more highways, bridges, for a return to normal educational budgets, for local real estate tax reduction, will be just as strident next year, and probably more so, than in previous years. And the promises of the candidates this summer will come back to plague them after January 1.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

VITAMIN

A man who for several years had been troubled with rough, scaly, dry, itchy skin, "tried" the usual ointments, lotions and other remedies suggested by Tom, Dick and Harry, in the usual way, and obtained no relief.

Then patches of the trouble appeared on new areas, and the man's wife happened to see an article in the column which told of the value of adequate daily rations of natural vitamin A (not carotene) in the prevention and cure of nutmeg grater skin, chronic "goose-flesh" or "lackskin." He began taking four capsules daily (100,000 units of A). In two or three weeks enough improvement in the skin condition was evident to encourage him to continue taking the same daily quantity of natural vitamin A.

After six or eight weeks the itching ceased, the scabiness had disappeared except one or two little spots, and the skin began to look like a human skin. Ah, but the man now worked up some new complaints. Maybe he just has to think of something to keep his wife out of mischief. Anyway he began to have hot flashes, so his wife averted and odd reddened patches would appear on forehead or cheek, persist for a little while after a hot flash had passed off, then fade again.

So he consulted, not the cop at the traffic crossing, but the corner druggist, of course. The druggist, unable to resist the temptation to pretend he has vast medical knowledge, opined that the man is taking too much vitamin A and cannot possibly assimilate so much. So-o-o, need he say more? It is an old conceit of quakery and folklore that if you ingest too much of anything, the excess breaks out thru your "pores" in the form of a skin rash. It is possible that the man did take more vitamin A than he actually needed after the first six weeks or so—perhaps 50,000 units (two capsules) or only 25,000 units (one capsule) daily would have been sufficient, along with what vitamin A he obtained in food, to restore his skin to normal. But neither the hot flashes nor the red blotches that remain for a while afterward are an indication of too much vitamin A.

It is more likely that the man is sensitive to some element in the fish liver oil from which the natural vitamin A is obtained by distillation and concentration. The better course for him would be to rest off from the vitamin A for a week, and then resume it, taking two capsules daily for several more weeks, or until his skin condition is restored to normal.

Nutrition authorities estimate that a young child requires 10,000 units of vitamin A daily just to maintain normal health, so it is scarcely reasonable that ten times as much would have any harmful effect on an adult, if you do not forget that vitamin A is an essential nutritive substance, not a drug or medicine to be measured in "doses."

"Thus far the evidence seems to indicate," said an editorial in the Jour. A. M. A., "not only for vitamin D but for all the vitamins more harm in the direction of an insufficiency than in relationship to an oversupply."

A lot of people get too little vitamins to maintain health. Few if any get too much vitamin in any circumstances.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Gall

Had my gall bladder removed three months ago. A friend tells me I should take the juice of a lemon daily to take the place of the bile. Is this true? (Mrs. J. O. P.)

Ans.—We assume it is. Friends tell some tall ones. However, removal of the gall bladder does not interfere with the secretion of bile by the liver and its conveyance into the intestine. If you like lemon, it is all right, but don't be silly just because your friend chooses to believe that way

The Mean Doctor

The medical examiner, learning that I have diabetes and receive thirty units of insulin daily, refuses to certify me fit to run my engine. . . (E. T.)

Ans.—That is the only thing the doctor can conscientiously do, for the safety of the public. This applies also to driving automobiles.

Hernia

I owe a debt of gratitude for your advocacy of the injection treatment of Leima. . . I understand the percentage of recurrence of hernia after the standard operation is around 40 per cent in men of my age, while recurrence after injection treatment is less than 5 per cent. But I never could have undergone the operation anyway. . . (F. G.)

Ans.—The ambulant (function) method, in skilled hands, is gaining steadily in popularity. It puts the efforts of the old times to fighten patients off from it. I succeed, I believe, in many cases where radical surgery would offer but a poor chance.

Flaxative

For nearly two years I had suffered greatly — after operation for fistula and hemorrhoids, and poor healing. I dreaded every evacuation. . . then saw your recommendation of flaxseed instead of physic. Began taking tablespoonful of the plain seeds night and morning. . . indeed grateful, now have no more difficulty. . . (V. M. B.)

Ans.—Thank you. And when that fails as a flaxative there is still psychology.

Just a Step Behind the News

By Dave Boone

On Mother's day in this country no mothers spent the day running from bombing planes. A florist's wagon could at least get through unshelled. And no son put in the day bombing some other son's mother. That was something.

It was a great treat for mom to know her children were not at war and it seemed good to have pop, irritable as he is, around the house instead of in the dugouts. She didn't need flowers to feel happy, this year.

With Europe in flames, America was concentrating on loose races, casual baseball series and family reunions. Bimblech won the Presidency in a gallop. This time he was sure he was ridden by Smith and not by the Smith brothers.

The question was often raised during the last seven years how deep a hole Uncle Sam would find himself in if war threatened him, after blowing in all his money for the greatest deficit in history, and now there may have to be an answer. After all the vast expenditures we've got the world's greatest fleet of do luxe post offices and the strongest armada of mechanized park systems in the world.

Every project has had billions spent on it, except the project of fitting the country so it can protect itself in the clutches. But no country on earth is as strongly equipped with brooms, shovels and rakes for any emergency.

Home Planning, Financing, Building, Furnishing

Building, Loan Offers Simple Mortgage Plan

Money for Homes Can be Obtained With No Red Tape

Small Monthly Payments Meet Borrower's Convenience

Getting a loan for building, purchasing or remodeling a home is as easy as falling off a log. The Appleton Building and Loan association prides itself in the simple and inexpensive mortgage plan which it offers.

The plan, according to Geo. H. Beckley, secretary of the association, involves an elementary form of application, small payments that don't interfere with the regular household budget and a mortgage that never will be sold or traded. There is no red tape. The needed money is made available almost immediately, Mr. Beckley says.

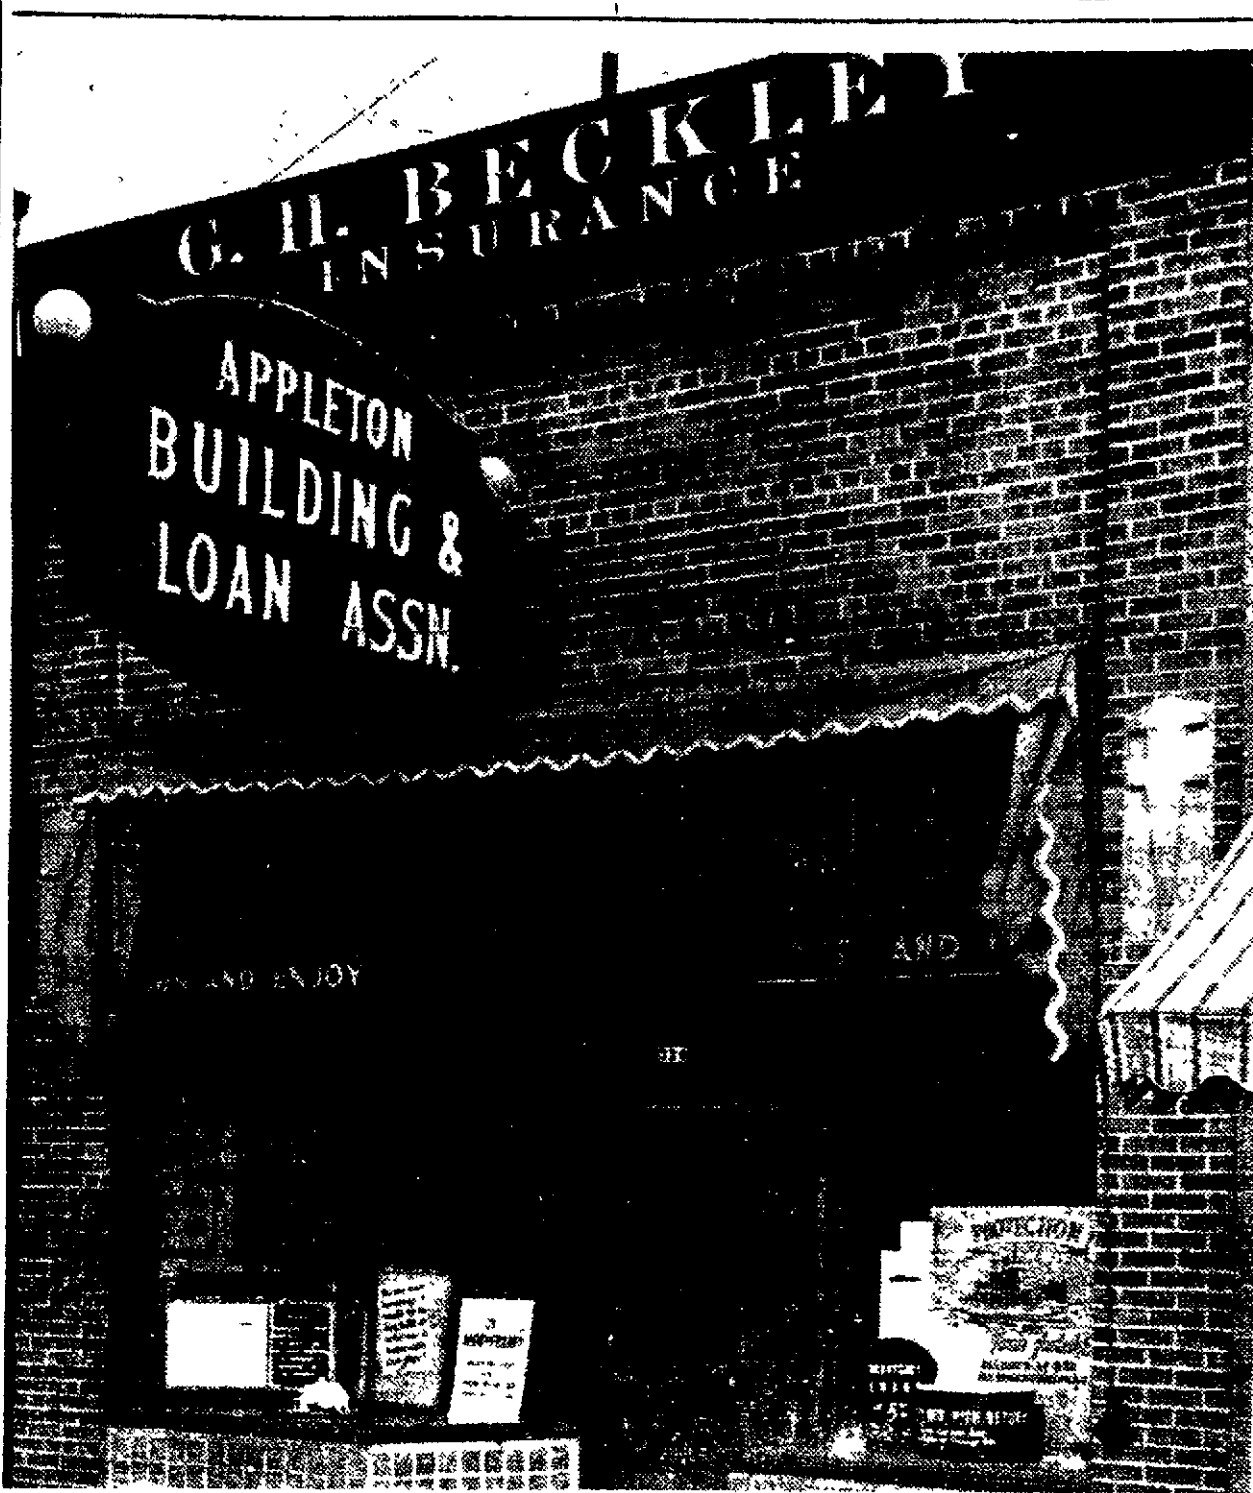

The association has been financing Appleton home building, buying and improving the last 21 years and its growth has coincided with the general progress and expansion of the city. The institution is organized to do two things: First, it protects the investor's money and makes it earn what it can in a secure manner. Secondly, it loans money conservatively to enable citizens of Appleton to own their own homes.

Simple Business
"The great strength of the building and loan association lies in its simplicity," Mr. Beckley explains. "There is no complicated financial mechanism to break down under stress. There are no 'trick securities' to blow up. There is no dangerous straining to make more than is soundly possible."

Liberal loans are made on fair appraisals. The mortgage plan offered by the building and loan differs from the ordinary "straight" mortgage in that the borrower repays part of the principal and interest each month. There is no dreaded due date when the sum borrowed must be repaid in full or the loan renewed at additional expense.

Monthly payment includes principal reduction and interest and may even be increased to cover taxes and insurance premiums. The borrower may pay off all his loan at any time or make partial payments.

Regardless of the sum required, each borrower is accorded prompt and equal consideration. A personal interest is taken in the client and the association aims to serve him in a pleasant and efficient manner.

ASSOCIATION HAS MODERN, CONVENIENT QUARTERS

Conveniently located at 324 W. College avenue so that the small monthly payments can be made while shopping, the Appleton Building and Loan association serves its clients in modern quarters. The association has enjoyed a steady growth while financing construction, purchasing or improvement of homes the last 21 years and has become an essential Appleton institution.

Standard Says Home Only As Good as Materials Put Into It

When the prospective home builder has decided what type of a house he wants and how he is going to pay for it, the next step is the selection of proper materials. A house is only as good as the materials with which it is built and the Standard Manufacturing company is prepared to guide its client in the choice of these materials, as well as furnish them at minimum cost.

The planning service department of the large Appleton firm is composed of trained men with wide knowledge and experience in estimating a home and selecting the materials best suited to it. Each material used in a structure has its own characteristics and advantages but there always is one material that is best qualified to fill the requirements of design, pocketbook and locality. It is in making these vital selections that the Standard offers its service.

Tested Materials
Few laymen know the fine points of the best paint, insulation, or the many class standing partitions, or the best wall boards or flooring. The vast number of traditional and new materials have been scientifically investigated, tested and checked by the Standard.

The firm can supply practically every kind of material made but will recommend certain products for their quality, value and appearance.

Much of the success of a material depends upon correct installation. The Standard cooperates with the contractor in this phase of the work to make doubly sure that the customer gets his money's worth. The proper use of a product determines to a large extent the durability, fire-safety and market value of a house. The Standard also has proven an invaluable aid in assuring that the materials harmonize and are properly fitted together.

The Standard handles materials that withstand the ravages of wind and weather. The customer can use the trade-marked products of manufacturers of national reputation with the confidence that they are every bit as good as represented.

Maynard Stresses Need for Proper Lighting in Home

Offers Beautiful, Efficient Designs in Modern Fixtures

So much has happened in the last half dozen years to improve lighting in the home, that a brand new science has grown out of it. As a result of this "science of seeing," newer, more beautiful and more efficient designs of lighting fixtures are available.

The first concern of this new science is the intensely practical one of introducing light in sufficient quantity and proper quality, wherever it may be needed. It has changed the old habit of scattering fixtures and lamps throughout the house without much regard for the job they were to do. It has made a critical scrutiny of each room of the house so that light can serve as a comfortable and usepart of the living scheme. The practical side of the new "science of seeing" has made electricity a thoughtful servant of the home owner.

There is a decorative side to the science of lighting, too, any many a room that now seems awkward, cold or ill-arranged, needs only the magic touch of fine lighting to give it charm and personality.

Quality as applied to lighting, is determined by two factors. First, absence of glare, which includes direct glare, such as from bare bulbs, and reflected glare as when light strikes a shiny surface of metal, glass or glossy paper. Secondly, diffusion, so that there is not a solid mass of light, but distribution that is soft and restful.

Distribution, in lighting, deals with an enemy of eyesight which might be called the twin devil of glare. This enemy is harsh contrast which comes from having a bright light on work with little or no light in the rest of the room.

Under such conditions, eye muscles receive a severe strain.

Lightolier company offers light conditioning which gives the home owner seeing conditions in the home that are more like seeing conditions provided by nature. The Lightolier fixtures are handled by the Maynard Electric service, 115 E. Spring street.

Schabo Company Installs New Plant for Pre-Mixed Concrete

First tests were run last Wednesday on new equipment for the making of pre-mixed concrete by the Henry Schabo and Son fuel company, 912 W. College avenue.

The company has erected a 53-foot structure containing bins, mixing apparatus, and scales to provide expertly blended, uniform concrete rapidly and efficiently for building operations in Appleton and vicinity.

Located in the fuel company yard, the plant is equipped with a conveyor belt to carry the gravel from the ground to the bin. An automatic meter controls the amount of water which goes into the mix.

The Schabo company points to the uniformity and precision in the pre-mixed concrete process as marking a forward step in the preparation of building material. Ingredients that make up the mixture—cement, gravel, and sand—are measured to a strict design under the direction of experts.

Schabo company officials, can be delivered on short notice and with little trouble. The company has purchased two large trucks, equipped with mixers, to transport the concrete to the scene of building operations.

With this type of equipment, the pouring process is almost unbelievably simple and the concrete is in the best condition possible.

Not only does the Schabo company guarantee that the pre-mixed concrete will live up to specifications, but is confident the product will more than meet the demand for certified strengths. It is actually stronger than required.

Control of quality, speed, ability to meet any and all specifications, and building problems, the Schabo company guarantees.

Appleton Heating Co. Deals in Conco Oil Burners and Stokers

L. A. Manthei, owner of the Appleton Heating company, 1119 W. Wisconsin avenue, announced today that he has been appointed Appleton representative for Conco oil burners, stokers, and oil-fired air-conditioning units manufactured by the Sampsel Stoker Corporation, a division of the H. D. Conkey and Company, Mendota, Ill.

The Conco line offers 25, 35, 60, and 75-pound bin feed models. This wire range in sizes means that the Appleton Heating company is in a feed models from small homes up to office buildings and manufacturing plants.

The Appleton Heating company also sells and installs Sunbeam heating and air-conditioning units manufactured by the American Radiator and Standard Sanitary corporation.

A safeguard device, exclusive with Conco stokers, consists of a small, colored light conveniently mounted on the thermostat, which flashes on to command your attention if, for any reason whatsoever, your stoker may need servicing. Thus, further assurance is given the owner of a Conco stoker that even though he is dealing with a thing mechanical, he need not worry about its operation save for the few minutes daily when the clinker rim is removed and the hopper filled.

Mr. Manthei is ready to explain the operation of the Conco stoker's "magic tell-tale" to home owners of Appleton and vicinity. It stands as one of the most important developments in the stoker field.

Conco oil burners, another addition to the list of famous heating apparatus handled by the Appleton Heating company, achieve unparalleled operation economy through the "magic spray regulator."

The air blown from the fan passes through segmented turbine sections, which sets up an agitated motion. This highly turbulent action is directed to the stoker through a cone-shaped combustion head. The oil is broken up into fine atomized particles. The flame is wide and uniform. Turbine blades are segmented, for scientific adjustment.

Conco oil heat is clean and completely automatic. All drudgery is banished. Dependable, comfortable heating, freeing the occupants of the household for the enjoyment of more pleasant pursuits than "fixing the furnace," is the blessing of Conco oil burners. "Magic hand" controls, including room thermostat, safety limit control, and safety ignition control, are the highly efficient safeguards available with Conco oil burners.

The Conco oil-fired air-conditioner is so designed that cold air is drawn through filters across the front of the heater, reclaiming warm air usually lost through the front of the furnace.

Defendant Denies Part In $1,000 Farm Holdup

Port Washington — Clarence Usiak, 43, charged with participation in a $1,000 robbery at the Leo Weiler farm last Aug. 27, testified in his own behalf today that he was at home at the time in question.

Usiak denied he was with Earl Sears, 38, and Ross Stevens, both of Gresham, at the Weiler home as Sears, a state witness, testified Friday.

He added that between 7 and 9 p. m. that evening he was giving harmonica lessons to three boys.

On cross-examination by District Attorney Frank X. Dicker, Usiak admitted he had been convicted in 1932 of operating a confidence game at Oconto and had met Sears in jail at Oconto thereafter.

The defense then rested its case.

A boy called by the state as a rebuttal witness said he thought that one of the boys who testified he was receiving a harmonica lesson from Usiak actually was at the Brown county fair at the time.

German Air Force Clears Way for Gains in Belgium

BY DREW MIDDLETON

With the British Expeditionary Force in Belgium—(Delayed)—(V—)

Allied troops, ready for a storm, found themselves in the path of a hurricane today.

As tanks and armored cars of the British threw their first fire into the advancing Germans, there was no doubt that the first great battle of this war had begun.

Informed sources told me the Germans had two armored divisions in the van of the attack, synchronized with a terrific bombing.

The hurricane rides on the wings of the German air force.

Despite serious losses in the Netherlands, Belgium, and France—placed by some in the neighborhood of 200,000—the German flanks still are hammering at their objectives.

A new front was established by landings of German parachute troops behind the allied line.

Bombs Shake Hosts
As I write, this noisy hotel shakes with thuds of bombs falling outside the town and with the deep "tugging twangs" of anti-aircraft batteries.

I have been on the continent just 36 hours, but I have heard sirens screech the "alert" 11 times, seen six Nazi bombers methodically lay their eggs, watched two fall burning to earth and seen scars of their operations.

A railway which Germans bombed at dawn was uncut. A French observer counted 18 craters, but said proudly, "they are hurried, those devils, look—"

Sure enough, there was a train chugging steadily along the tracks.

As I traveled nearly 300 miles over this little nation—just a bit smaller than the state of Maryland—I saw arm evidence of what total war means.

Refugees Fleeing
There was two-way traffic on the roads, moving toward the distant sounds of guns where British men, materials and munitions in trucks, widely-spaced to offer unattractive bombing targets.

Moving painfully away from the guns was another army—the army of the homeless and stricken. Refugees went slowly through the thick white dust toward the safety that may be behind the lines.

The rich rode in cars. The poor rode huddled in trucks, on burdened bicycles.

Then voices haunt you: "We know nothing Friday morning there came the explosion. Our windows broke. The little boy across the street—so bright a little boy—is dead. So we left."

These Germans. Four years of them we had when I was middle-aged. Now we go. No one can hold them.

Murder Trial Begun In Pittsburgh Court

Pittsburgh—(V)—Angelo Laman-tia, apprehended two months ago in Milwaukee, went on trial today on a charge of murder in the slaying nine years ago of Morris Curran, boss of an organization which police said supplied bootleggers with yeast, sugar and similar products.

Although five detectives who investigated the shooting are dead, five women—school girls at the time of the slaying—identified Laman-tia as the man who jumped into the automobile and drove away.

Dies After Crash
Arthur Trepow, 35, Milwaukee, was fatally hurt and Norman Western, 24, 306 N. State street, critically injured in an automobile accident near Lomira about 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Seven others also were injured in the crash.

Sheriff Edward Hammer of Dodge county reported that an automobile driven by Edward J. Kiley, 109 N. Morrison street, crashed into one driven by Arthur Trepow, Sr., at a junction of Highway 41 and a side road. Western, who was riding with Kiley, suffered a fractured skull and arm. Dots Lemke, 21, 1113 W. Packard street, suffered a fractured pelvis and bruises and Virginia Landry, 713 S. Douglas street, a fractured arm and bruises. The other four were riding in the Kiley car and are confined to a hospital. Mrs. Trepow was cut and bruised as was her daughter, Bernice, and Jeanette Biegler, Milwaukee. Drivers of both cars were injured slightly.

Jeanette Hobbs, 15, Royalton, suffered cuts and bruises about the face and body when the car in which she was riding dropped off the side of the road and into a culvert at 12:30 Sunday morning on Highway 45, about 11 miles east of Hortonville.

Unhurt were Leonard Stibe, 17, Weyauwega, driver of the car, and Fred Jasman, 20, route 1, Manawa. The trio was going west on Highway 45 toward Manawa at the time of the accident.

The driver told county police his lights went out while he was driving and he lost control of the car which broke two posts marking the culvert and dropped into the culvert depression.

Three Injured
Three persons were injured, one seriously, when cars driven by Ed Finnegan, Clintonville, and E. R. Vaughan, Manawa, collided on Highway 22 north of Manawa about 10:30 yesterday morning. Finnegan was driving south and Vaughan was north and attempting a left turn as the accident occurred. The Finnegan car rolled over three times.

Cars driven by Herbert Walbrun, 23, 735 Tayco street, Menasha, and Joe Rossmessel, 23, 522 W. Eighth street, collided on Richmond street about 1 o'clock this morning. Both cars were headed south at the time, according to police. The Walbrun car was damaged about the rear, and the Rossmessel car about the front end.

Another minor collision at 10:30 Saturday night involved cars driven by C. E. Schroeder, Y.M.C.A., and Peter Schaefer, 32, route 4, Appleton. Schroeder was going south on Oneida street and Schaefer east on College avenue when the cars collided, police said.

Rain Is Forecast Tonight, Tuesday; 83 in City Sunday

Showers to Bring Cooler Temperatures; 70 This Afternoon

The first genuine spring weather in Appleton and vicinity will be followed by showers and cooler temperatures, the weatherman said today.

Appleton and the state in general can expect a hundred storms today, as residents revel in the warm sunshine. The mercury hit a high of 83 yesterday, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, according to the Wisconsin Michigan Power company plant.

At 1 o'clock this afternoon, the thermometer stood a shade over the 70-mark, and gray clouds were beginning to gather over the city. The minimum for the 24 hour period ended at 9 o'clock this morning was 55.

The warmest weather of the year in the north central state moved eastward today.

Forecasters Gordon Dunn of Chicago and rains would cover Iowa and Minnesota tonight, Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and Michigan tomorrow, the Associated Press reported.

Maxima yesterday were generally the highest of the year. Dunn said. Parts of Illinois and the area from Missouri to Ohio probably will have even higher marks today before the showers arrive.

Among yesterday's high marks were Chicago

Analysis Is Required for Holdup Play

BY ELY CULBERTSON

There are certain departments of play which, even in this advanced age of bridge, have not been thoroughly explored by the great majority of players. Take the department of holdup plays, for example. The most painstaking analysis is required to bring out the full potentialities of these plays which, perhaps better than any other coups, demonstrate the enormous importance of timing. How many declarers, I wonder, would have brought home the contracts in the following deal?

The bidding:
West North East South
1 spade Double Pass 2 no trump

West thought for a long time over his opening lead. Not that he had any intention of opening a suit other than spades. This problem was which spade to lead. There is a difference of opinion among authorities as to whether the king or the fourth highest should be led from a five card suit headed by the K-Q-J. Sometimes one lead works out better; sometimes the other. The "percentage," in my opinion, distinctly favors the fourth best lead, and apparently West agreed with me, because he selected the seven spot. Declarer won with the ten, and since nine tricks could not be run without establishing at least one diamond, immediately returned a diamond toward dummy. West properly ducked. East won with the king, and returned a spade. Declarer soon found that his remaining A-J-2 were inadequate defense against the spade suit. It mattered little at this point whether he played the ace, the jack, or the deuce, because West was sure to establish the suit, get in with the diamond ace, and cash enough spades to defeat the contract. East, however, ducked East's spade return entirely. West won with the nine and cleared the suit by laying down the king. From that point on declarer was helpless.

It would have taken considerable vision and the shrewdest sort of analysis for declarer to have brought home this contract. But nevertheless success was well within his grasp. The winning play was to concede the first trick to the enemy! Notice the vast difference that this would make in the subsequent play. Assuming East covered West's seven spot with the eight and returned the spade six (the best defense) declarer would merely duck again and West would be back on lead with the queen. Now declarer would lead the A-J of spades against West's K-Q-5, and East would be out of the suit. West could not lead a third spade to any good purpose and declarer could clear the diamonds without fearing another spade lead thru his tenace.

Had West originally selected the spade king instead of the fourth highest as his opening lead, the same sort of holdup play would be required of declarer. That is to say, he would have to allow the spade king to win the trick. Later, when East won on the lead with the diamond king and returned a spade, declarer would again play low, which would bring about the same position that should have been achieved against the actual opening of the fourth highest spade. The crucial point is that against either opening lead South must refuse the first trick so as to exhaust East of spades. A close study of this hand is recommended to those readers who are anxious to learn the niceties of declarer's play.

My Neighbor Says—

Cultivate the ground in which strawberry plants are grown after heavy rain in order to conserve the supply of moisture.

A tea wagon or serving table is a great convenience for the home-maker who does her own work, for she may have it heated, her meal time and use it for extra silver and linen, extra water, coffee or tea service. She may clear the table of the first course, putting the soiled dishes on the lower shelf, thus saving countless steps and making her guests feel at ease.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

TONI GILMAN, talented C.B.S. artist, typifies the modern careerist who remains charming as she grows successful!

You probably will sigh and say it is an old story when I warn business and professional girls to hold on to their femininity and not let a career rob them of their rightful heritage. The battle of the sexes has been raging ever since Eve and every man or woman who writes has taken it for a theme, at least once. But I am convinced that those of us who work outside the home can well pause to consider how good a trump is feminine loveliness.

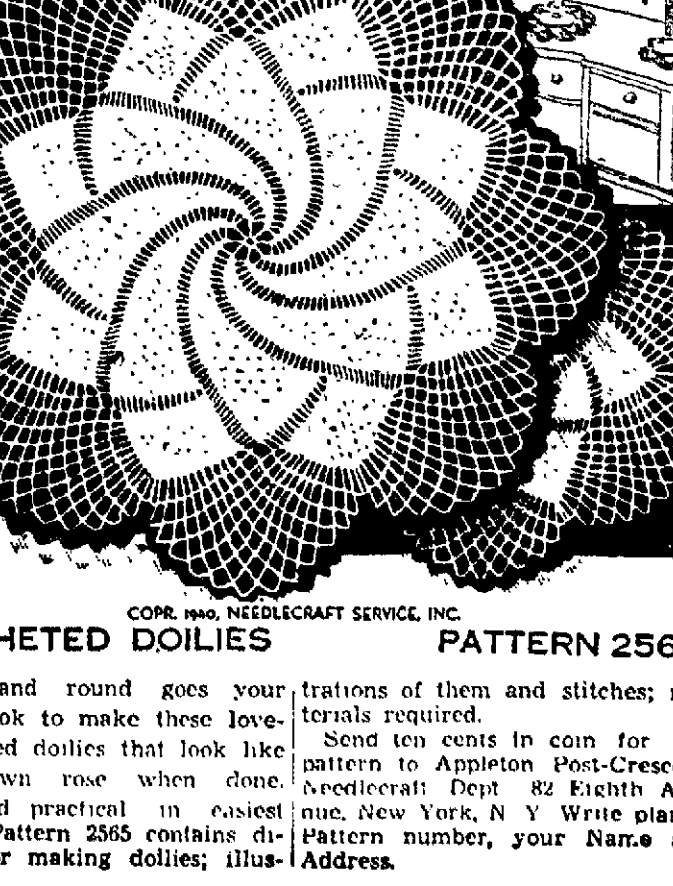

During these days and years of keen competition we are likely to forget that the A-J of spades is the biggest mistake a woman can make. We are working at a career we must be intelligent and strong but men and women, and some who are not so capable but who are favored. We must stick up for our rights. We cannot let anyone step on us. That competition tends to make us bold and callous unless we watch out.

Use Your Heritage
So much can be gained by working the feminine angle. By that I do not mean that we should flirt with the boss or pull a faint when things get tough. An indeed if we are working at a career we must be intelligent and strong but men and women, and some who are not so capable but who are favored. We must stick up for our rights. We cannot let anyone step on us. That competition tends to make us bold and callous unless we watch out.

Just because we are doing work which was once considered the work of men, we need not be masculine. She who enters her place of business nicely groomed, dressed, and acts within its walls with as much poise and tact as she would use in a selected social group, will gain her ends and win admiration all along the line. She will have to be firm at times and discriminating, but she need never be rude, loud, sarcastic, hard-boiled or mean. And the type of woman in business who is likened to a female dog, usually ends up on the end of a limb with no person willing to come to her aid. It doesn't take long for both sexes to get her number, so to speak.

If we embrace a career let's embrace it with dignity. Let us, as a group, show men that women can be careerists and still not sacrifice their womanly charm.

Arithmetic Problems are Easier With Cash in Hand

BY ANGELO PATRI

"Where's Mickey?"
"He's over at Hickey's doing some wedding. He asked me if he could go and I thought it would keep him out of the way for a while. He gets in everybody's hair. He hasn't anything he likes to do here. The other two haven't patience with him. I'm sure I don't know what's to be done with him."

"Too bad he's so dumb in school. The other two are bright enough."
"He is a dead loss in arithmetic. Can't seem to get it. That's the only subject he missed out on."

"The teacher's report didn't sound so good."
"Well, she has his brother and sister in mind. They get honor marks and he gets a low mark in arithmetic and good marks in the rest. He shows up poorly beside them. If he wasn't so dumb in arithmetic—"

"What do you suppose set him to wedding? He wouldn't think of wedding here."

"He's earning money. We wouldn't have enough wedding to do to keep him busy every day. And we wouldn't pay him."

Poor (?) Financier
"But why the sudden interest in working for money? Since when has money meant anything to him? He never seemed to want any. He's the only one who has any money at the end of the week. The others have to borrow from him, I notice."

"Yes, and forget to pay it back and he lets them get away with it. At least so far. This earning business may change his ways."

"Let's hope it sharpens his arithmetic. How long does he work and what does he get?"

"He works from seven to eleven and gets a dollar. He collects each day and puts it in his red box."

At lunch time Mickey, after eating about twice as much as his brother and sister, sighed contentedly and refused another helping of pie.

"How are you getting on with the job?" asked father. "Mother tells me you are a working man these days. I'm glad that there is another man in the house bringing in the sheaves. What are you going to do with all this money? A man has to think about that, you know, or he won't get very far ahead."

Mickey showed his delight at such recognition from father. His eyes danced and he said, "I'll talk that over, confidentially, with you. My business secrets have to be strictly respected, like Mr. Hickey's."

When he got a chance Mickey told father: "Mother wouldn't join the club she wanted to join because it cost twenty-five dollars a year," he said. "She pays Mrs. Sam about thirty a year for helping. I'm going to earn that twenty-five, maybe the whole thirty, and give it to her for Christmas, so she can pay the club membership. But don't tell."

"Mickey, I thought you couldn't figure? Thought you couldn't use your head to see through a problem? Thought you said you were dumb in arithmetic?"

"So I am but I'm getting better, a little. Don't you tell ma, now, will you?"

"Nope. I wouldn't miss seeing her face Christmas morning when she gets that present, not for anything in this world, and just remember, boy, you've given me a grand present right now. You're a right good fellow. Shake, partner."

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Modern Women Lack Needed Quality of Cheerfulness

BY DOROTHY DIX

If the Creator had seen fit to make Eve out of Adam's funnybone instead of his wishbone, he would have bestowed an inestimable blessing upon mankind. For what the world needs more than anything else is cheerful women and, alas and alack, they are almost as scarce as hens' teeth. Cheerfulness is a rare feminine virtue. It is not even one that women admire or desire to possess. They look at a woman who is gay and jolly and full of fun, and suspect her of being no better than she should be, or else she would be taking life more seriously. Their ideal is a woman who wears an air of gentle melancholy, who suffers from a secret sorrow and who is a real first-class worrier, who lives in dread of her faithful old Darby eloping with his blonde secretary, who thinks the children have pneumonia every time they catch a cold and who never gets over any kind of a sorrow. Whether glooming is a natural talent with women, or whether poets, artists and novelists fastened a melancholic complex on them by glorifying tears and painting Mona Lisas with sad, wistful smiles, nobody knows.

Dorothy Dix It just remains true that no role is so popular with them as that of the martyr and there is nothing they so much enjoy as a real good cry.

And the queer part of this obsession that they have for woe is that it has blinded them to the fact that a woman's real best bet is cheerfulness.

A laugh that is hung on a hair-trigger will carry a woman farther than beauty or brains or glamor or what have you. Any girl, no matter how homely, who is lively, good company and can keep men amused and entertained, will snap her fingers in Miss America's face.

Nor need any wife who can make a joke instead of a tragedy out of a husband's little faults and foibles ever worry about some siren taking double card is not a correct substitute for a paper. If there is no paper, a cocktail party, how long are we supposed to stay, what do we wear, am I supposed to answer the invitation which is written on the host's Mr. and Mrs. visiting card? These people are almost strangers to us but they are very hospitable and my husband thinks we should accept it before, and don't especially look forward to this one."

Beginning then with answering the invitation if R. S. V. P. or "please reply" is written on it, you may telephone your answer to one whom you know very slightly as well as to an intimate friend. But if you write an answer to the stranger, you should write on note paper in the third person. Invitations from intimate friends may be answered on your ordinary visiting card: "With pleasure Jan. 6." The inside of a double card is not a correct substitute for a paper. If there is no paper, a cocktail party, how long are we supposed to stay, what do we wear, am I supposed to answer the invitation which is written on the host's Mr. and Mrs. visiting card? These people are almost strangers to us but they are very hospitable and my husband thinks we should accept it before, and don't especially look forward to this one."

You wear a street dress and a hat, and your husband an ordinary sack suit. He will probably go to the party direct from his office. Even if he goes home to change, ordinary business clothes are proper. But if he is a formal type person, he may prefer a starched shirt, black coat and striped trousers, which would also be correct in a formal community. At a house where people are known to stay overlong, you may perhaps stop in on your way to a dinner. In this case, you would of course wear evening clothes.

If the invitations read "5:30 to 7" you go at whatever time you choose between those hours and stay for the hour, or as short a time as you like. If you are asked at a definite hour—at six, let us say—you go promptly at that hour or not much later than a quarter past.

Since a cocktail party is always informal, the roof of your host serves as an introduction, and you talk with any one you find yourself next to. The only particular rules of etiquette at a cocktail party are two. First, you need not take any strong drink unless you choose to. There should be an alternate choice of tea or plain fruit juice or other nonalcoholic beverage, and if there isn't, lack of consideration is that of the hostess for not providing anything for you, not yours for having to say "No thank you." Second, you must however say "No thank you" graciously and not with any evidence of criticism. You help yourself to whichever appetizers you like.

If you don't like these either, then have a good time talking! If you have to leave very soon, you go to your hostess and say, "I'm so sorry we have to go. Thank you for a lovely time." If this last is not true then say, "Thank you for thinking of me," or "I hope to see you soon" or what ever is polite and true!

Mrs. Port is sorry she can no longer answer personal letters. She is glad, however, to have many printed slips on a variety of subjects to offer to her readers. Today's slip is "Cocktails." Be sure to send a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Mrs. Port, in care of this paper, P. O. Box 140, Times Square Station, New York, N. Y.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane

Psychologist, Northwestern University

If intermarriage of the sort which Marcia desires, is actually to occur, then I'd recommend as a rule that the wife's church be chosen, for a religiously active mother is more important to the welfare of children than a strongly religious father. There are numerous exceptions to this rule, but the batting averages favor the above policy.

CASE Q-161: Marcia H., aged 23, is a stenographer.
"I am a Catholic and am engaged to a Protestant," she began.
"He wants to be married by a Protestant clergyman but I want to be married by a priest."
"If my boy friend were married by a priest, he would have to sign a paper saying that all the children would have to be reared as Catholics."

"He goes to Sunday school in our neighborhood while I used to attend mass every Sunday. During the past year, I have lived so far away from my church that I haven't gone very often."

"Lately I have attended his Sunday school class, but I don't feel right in that atmosphere. They argue and debate over points which are taught never to question."
"Would I be happy if I gave in to him and were married by a Protestant clergyman? Would I feel that I was really married?"

"It seems unfortunate to me that we have so many different religions. I love him very much and don't want to give him up. Dr. Crane, please let me what to do."

DIAGNOSIS: Perhaps it is unfortunate that we have so many different sects and creeds, but there are some valid arguments in support of having more than one political party as well as more than one church.

Without wholesome competition, an organization tends to go to seed and become dictatorial. A trust or monopoly of anything, whether commercial or spiritual, is likely to abuse its prerogatives.

One of the best guarantees of democracy and our American form of government is our diversity of opinion and our liberty to express our own viewpoints.

Religious dictatorships can be just as despotic and cruel as any of those political dictatorships now so prominent in Europe.

Held Fast to American Tradition
Frank Gannett, recently stated that we have come to a sorry pass if citizens are afraid of their government, when in reality a government should be afraid of its citizens.

In similar fashion, people should never be afraid of their church, but the church should be afraid of its parishioners. That is the true American tradition.

Only that kind of attitude makes an organization remain pure and circumspect, honest and efficient in accounting for its funds or taxes.

Religion is one of the basic forces for good government and warrants ardent support. Without the unselfish devotion of religious educators, morality would probably disappear and we'd live under a Nero form of paganism, despite our scientific advances.

Should Catholic Marry Protestant?
Because our religious beliefs are usually firmly entrenched from childhood, and possess the halo of our mothers, it is dangerous business trying to remake an adult's religious attitudes.

Intermarriage between ardent members of strongly opposed religious systems is usually fraught with danger. If you wish to play the batting averages, don't indulge in such marriages.

Pick out a desirable member of your own faith, your own political party, your own social, economic and educational group. Don't handier yourself by laying the groundwork for later marital quarrels.

Clashes over religion and politics inevitably will occur, despite the gallantry and open-mindedness of the courtship and honeymoon. Permanent marital stability depends on similarity of basic habits in husband and wife.

LEAP BEFORE YOU LOOK

By Peggy O'More

YESTERDAY: Although Doty is still loyal to Tomi she leaves to take care of her sick daughter. Tomi receives a stiff note from Pierre saying he is back in Louisiana. She cannot understand the reason for his desertion.

Chapter 30
SUCCESS OR FAILURE?
THE garden administered peace to Tomi's unhappy heart. Pierre was a thorn that stayed in the flesh of her spirit, and festered. Doty was a lonely ache, for Doty who had mothered her, had proved she was first the mother of this Gladys. The Tolands.

Tomi had refused invitations to their home until they had stopped giving them. Great-aunt Hannah still called regularly to see that she wasn't ill. Great-aunt Hannah, however, spent her spare moments with Allen Bartell and Lily Markin. The blonde Lily was more in evidence than ever.

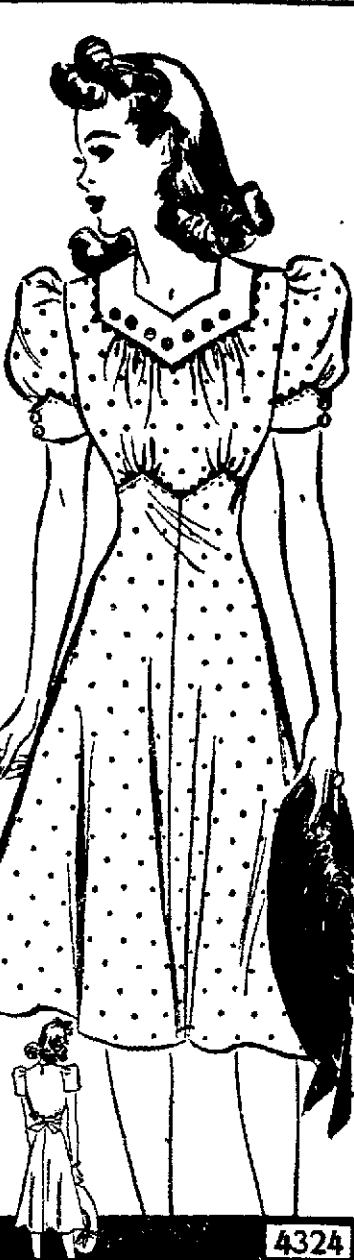

But the Tolands made Tomi realize she was, after all, only half Toland.

Old Abe had grown silent under the mid silence of Tomi. Only with Little Sweetheart was he at ease.

But it was Allen Bartell who sent Tomi pacing the sands on the cool autumn evenings. It was the very sight of him which throbbed her heart from its moorings with sickening pain. And it was Allen who made the winning of the place more vital.

"Miss Tomi—" Abe pushed his chair back from the kitchen table this early autumn evening—"you ain't told me how we're gettin' on, but I'm thinking this. Feed comes high. We got a bumper crop of young-uns growing up. You feedin' all of them. You could save yourself a mint of money if you was to back-feed."

COTTON DRESS

Casual cotton frocks are the mainstay of any well-dressed summer clothes-closet. This is especially true of the Anne Adams Pattern 4324 so smart for all-day wear and so simple to stitch up with the Sewing Instructor's guidance. The twin-peaked waist-seam is placed high for slim lines; the four-section skirt flares briskly. Just see how engagingly the yoke "copycats" the shape of the neckline... and notice the gathered bodice softness. The puffed sleeves may have smart pointed details. Outline all the striking style details with ric-rac, or make the yoke and sleevebands in bright contrast.

Pattern 4324 is available in misses' and women's sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 takes 3 1/2 yards 35 inch fabric and 2 yards ric-rac.

THE HOME GARDENER

by EDWIN H. PERKINS

To a large extent a gardener's success depends upon the tools he uses. The best tools are expensive. So are many of the freaks, which should be avoided.

The average home garden is now in a condition to be hoed or cultivated. This process uproots and kills the weeds, surs and pulverizes the topsoil into a moisture conserving mulch and admits air to the soil crevices so that it finally filters down to the rootlets.

For this purpose two tools are generally used although a long list is available. The older tool, known as a nursery hoe. The seven-inch hoe is best for men while women find the six-inch size less tiring. If you have either and are blessed with light soil, you will not need to purchase another tool. But, if you do not own a hoe, and the garden soil is rather heavy, the four-tined forged steel weeding implement called a speedy cultivator will prove an excellent investment.

The four tines or prongs of this tool are so turned that they can be drawn through the ground with a chopping motion. Cultivation can be done in half the time required with the orthodox hoe.

The speedy cultivator permits working among closely planted material where an ordinary hoe would be user with difficulty. On previously worked and humus-lightened soil it obviates the need for a spading fork.

storm waitin' that's goin' to strike tonight and drive the babies right down to the bottom.

"Cheer up, Abe," she managed, with an attempt at fun. "The next owner will keep you on."

But Abe shook his head dolefully. "It won't be the same without you, Miss Tomi. I sure do wish you'd take my savings and use it on them books of yours."

Two tears seeped through the black lashes.

"Keep your savings, Abe," she whispered. "You are liable to need them."

Tomi didn't go near the pens. She couldn't stand to watch millions of tiny mouths open, begging for food. Truly, frogs were prolific.

"Give them all they will eat, Abe," she called about the house, bidding it goodby. Nothing short of a miracle could save the place for her now.

She had closed off most of the rooms after Doty left. Keeping them open had only meant cleaning. She had lived in the kitchen and office and her own room.

Now she went slowly through the others. She thought of the plans she

Gatherings for Neighborly Assistance Launched Social Life in State's Early History

SOCIAL life in early Wisconsin which began with gatherings for neighborly assistance, progressed to forms of entertainment "just for fun" which laid the foundation for the recreational freedom people enjoy today, Miss Susan B. Davis, assistant to the dean of women at the University of Wisconsin and author of books on Wisconsin history, said in a talk before Daughters of the American Revolution of Appleton, Oshkosh, Neenah, Menasha, De Pere and Green Bay Saturday afternoon at Castle hall. The occasion was a tea and program to honor the state regent of the organization, Mrs. F. G. Wheeler, Appleton. Miss Davis, sister of Mrs. Edgar V. Werner, began her program with a story, "The First Kirmess," the setting of which was the vicinity of Kewaunee near Green Bay in 1838. She described the people, many of whom had come from Belgium, and the manner in which they had worked the land and settled their homes in this new country, and told of the need for relaxation and social contact particularly between the women of the community. "In the people of Wisconsin there was always an inherent joy of playing," Miss Davis said. She described the two kinds of entertainment of those early days, the first to accomplish a definite purpose as was the first kirmess, and the second for diversion only. Parties of neighborly assistance, in which entertainment was afforded in doing the things necessary for the life of the people, were the log cabin raisings, candle-dippings, and quilting parties and husking bees, Miss Davis said. At the candle-dipping parties, an average of 90 candles were dipped, one for each night of winter, the speaker explained, and at the quilting bees the women exchanged recipes and household hints as they pieced and quilted. The quilt told the story of the community, Miss Davis went on, for the various women who participated added their quilt pieces from dress remnants and other left-over materials. Singing schools and spelling bees were utilitarian, she added, for they were a part of the extra-curricular activities of the early schools in which the older people could take part. Dancing was the chief diversion in the second type of social activity, that for entertainment only, Miss Davis explained, and there was always food. She spoke of the two interesting social centers in Wisconsin, Madison and Milwaukee, and mentioned particularly the saengerfests and gymnastic exhibitions in Milwaukee. In the old forts of Wisconsin, particularly those of Portage and Green Bay, dancing was the great form of entertainment, although there were some private theatricals in which the young officers took all the roles, female as well as male. Lieutenant Jefferson Davis who came to live in Portage after his graduation from West Point was very popular because of his manners and his courtesy in always dancing with the chaperons and young girls, Miss Davis said. Two Groups of Solos Miss Janet Merrill, Green Bay, sang two groups of solos, the first composed of Indian, French, English and Scotch numbers, and the second songs by American composers. Miss Merrill is a great granddaughter of Theresa Fisher Bird, one of the early settlers of Wisconsin and a writer of early Wisconsin history. Mrs. John Whitney, Green Bay, played her accompaniment. Proceeding the program Mrs. Edgar V. Werner, regent of Appleton chapter, introduced Mrs. Wheeler, the state regent, who gave a brief talk and reported on the national D. A. R. Congress in Washington, D. C., which she attended. Mrs. W. Z. Stuart, Neenah, past state regent, was present and responded briefly, as did Mrs. O. N. Branson, De Pere, also a past state regent. At the tea which followed Miss Carrie Morgan and Mrs. A. H. Krugmeier, charter member of Appleton chapter, poured. About 115 women were present. Rita Johnson strikes a patriotic note in her two-piece outfit in red, white and blue. The plain white skirt is gracefully flared and topped by a cardigan type bodice in jersey; one side is bright red and the other royal blue, while the buttons that form the center closing are shiny silver. Tiny puffed sleeves match the white in the skirt. A tiny waistline is achieved by the cord shirred through at the midriff and tied in a double knot at the front. The actress who will soon be seen opposite Spencer Tracy in "Edison, the Man," wears wedgesoled sandals in red and white to complete her ensemble.

The four Holy Name societies of Appleton received holy communion at their respective churches Sunday morning and had Mother's day breakfasts afterwards in the parish halls. About 300 men attended. During the business meeting the society voted to furnish the offices of the Rev. M. A. Hauch, pastor, and the Rev. Edward Haessly, assistant, in the new parsonage. William A. McCarthy, Green Bay attorney, gave the breakfast address at the meeting of Holy Name society of St. Mary church Sunday morning in Columbia hall. His subject was "Catholic Action." About 150 men were present. "Mother" was the subject of an address given by the Rev. Father Gilbert O. M. Cap. of Monte Alverno Retreat house at the breakfast meeting of Holy Name society of St. Joseph's church Sunday morning in the parish hall. The Rev. Cyriacus Abler, O. M. Cap., pastor of the church, told of the banner which was purchased in Milwaukee for the society and reported that it will be here in time for the rally June 2 at Manitowish. An officers' meeting will be held at 7:30 Friday night at the monastery. The men wore red and white boutonnieres at the mass and breakfast yesterday. Sacred Heart Holy Name society held a breakfast after the early mass at which the men received communion. Five Brides-to-be Are Feted at Party Five Appleton teachers who are brides-to-be were honored at a dessert bridge party given Saturday afternoon at the Conway hotel by Miss Lucille Nehls, Miss Viola Pelzer and Miss Charlotte Klemm. There Are TWO Kinds of MOTHERS' DAYS

Yesterday... Sunday, May 12th, was one kind of "Mother's Day." A national holiday. Today... Monday, May 13th, was another kind. Back to work for too many mothers. Tomorrow will be like that, too! And so Wednesday and Thursday and Friday and Saturday. Especially these days when there is so much hard work to do during the housecleaning season. But mother doesn't have to do all this work. She can LET THE PEOPLE'S LAUNDRY DO A LOT OF IT... such as washing curtains, pillows and blankets... and cleaning drapes, slip covers and clothing. What a help this can be! And so economical, too, when you can have it done here!

Sentence Will Wait Until End of Trial of Others In Buckman Case

Madison — (P) — Edgar C. Holt, Madison, former secretary-treasurer of the bankrupt B. E. Buckman and Company, pleaded nolo contendere (no defense) at the opening in federal court today of the trial of nine persons charged with mail fraud and securities law violations.

Judge Charles G. Briggie, Springfield, Ill., deferred sentence until the joint trial of two other officers, Barton E. Buckman, president, and Louis C. George, vice president, and six former office managers and salesmen have been completed.

Holt was released from Waupun prison in May, 1939, after serving 11 months on a one-year sentence imposed in circuit court at Milwaukee on charges of violating state securities laws.

Judge Briggie was presiding because the federal judge for this district, Patrick T. Stone, had ruled on various matters arising from the Buckman bankruptcy action and disqualifying himself.

CIRCUS HEAD WEDS FRENCH ACTRESS
John Ringling North, head of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus, is shown with his bride, the former Germaine Aussey, a French actress, after their marriage in the city hall in Philadelphia.

The defendants in court today were Buckman, George, Holt, Sholtz, Edwin J. Crofoot, Bay City, Texas, manager of several former Buckman operating companies; Wilbur V. Malkson, Bangor, Maine, former branch manager at Eau Claire; and the following former salesmen, Fielding T. Spain, Milwaukee; Clarence D. Winebrenner, Madison; and Richard E. George, Kansas City, Mo., the latter a brother of Louis C. George.

They were indicted here Aug. 14, 1939, on 15 counts, one charging violation of the mail fraud statute and the others mainly violations of securities laws.

Shirley Temple to 'Retire' From Films At Age of 11 Years

Hollywood — (P) — Shirley Temple, with her first million, and more, in the bank — "retiring" at the ripe old age of 11.

The curly-haired child sensation who ruled the nation's box offices from 1935 through 1938, will sever connections with 20th Century-Fox studio when her twenty-fourth and latest film, "Young People," is released. It was finished last week.

Announcement that her seven-year stay at the studio would end was made by her mother, Mrs. George Temple, and 20th's president, Joseph M. Schenck.

Both agreed the parting was amicable. Mrs. Temple said she was concerned because stories "to suit the new grow-up phase in Shirley's life" had not been found. She added that she felt her daughter was entitled to "those normal, natural benefits" that may be derived from mungling and competing with a large number of other children.

From the studios' viewpoint, Shirley had simply ceased to be the attraction she was in 1935, when as a dimpled little six-year-old she captivated film-goers the world over.

Scouters Plant 1,000 Trees at Gardner Dam

Under the direction of Harold Brown of Appleton, a group of about 15 scouts of the valley council planted 1,000 pine trees at Gardner Dam over the weekend.

The scouts who worked at the project were from Appleton and Neenah-Menasha.

PEEP, PEEP—SURPRISE

Pueblo, Colo. — (P) — A Pueblo housewife awakened one spring morning recently to find not one but six chickens in her oven.

As she lifted the stove preparatory to making breakfast biscuits she heard a "peep, peep." Investigation disclosed six chickens in rooster inside the oven. Her children explained they had acquired the chicks the night before and had placed them in the oven to keep them warm.

DIES AT MILWAUKEE

Milwaukee — (P) — James D. Thuber, 76, assistant station manager at the Milwaukee Road depot here for 43 years until his retirement three years ago, died yesterday at his home. He was a native of Clyde, (Iowa county), Wis.

LEAP BEFORE YOU LOOK

had made for them; the things she had intended to do this winter. . . . Instead, she'd be looking for a job.

Here was Dorothy Dougherty's room. Tom opened the door and went in. It was musty. She opened the windows.

A glance around the room and she saw a slip of ribbon closed in a drawer. She had thought Dorothy packed everything on that second trip.

Tom opened the drawer to return the ribbon to whatever garment it was attached. She forgot the ribbon and stared in astonishment. She shook her head as though to clear it. She was "seeing things."

The drawer were her books; the books she used for the farm accounts.

Tom had a moment of sheer panic. Perhaps she had worried over Pierre, Allen and the farm until she had lost her mind. She touched the books. They were real. She opened them.

And she sighted in relief. The handwriting was similar to hers, but it wasn't hers. And yet . . .

Tom picked up the books and rushed down to her office. She was grateful to find her own books locked in their accustomed place.

She compared them with the ones she had just found. In one respect they were identical—the column of MONEY RECEIVED. In the column marked EXPENDITURES, every single item had been doubled, save salaries.

Tom thumbed through the book. The accounts had been listed only until July 28th. "Why," she cried aloud, "that was the day I left for Los Angeles."

But what did it mean?

She'd call Dot; she'd call Bartell, but first she would call Old Abe.

Abe ambled up, a piece of dry wheat between what he insisted upon calling "Dr. Smith's teeth," though Tom had assured him she had paid for them.

Abe, look! She spread the two sets of books on the kitchen table. "Do you know anything about these fake books?"

Abe found a chair. It seemed to Tom he felt the need of a chair at that precise moment.

"Well, yes," he conceded. "Guess it won't do no harm to tell you now."

Tom waited while Abe sought for words.

"It's this way," the old man began. "Dot, she washed a pair of Pierre's pants."

"Imagine that," murmured Tom when Abe paused.

"And she found a letter. I got the letter," he assured her doggedly. "It was from a girl. Well, things kept getting more complicated. You looked like you was fallin' for Pierre and ready to get yourself married to him, and then Dot, and Allen and me, we thought it was time to do something."

"Abe," cried Tom, "will you talk sense?"

Abe sighed. "You wouldn't know sense if it was spelled to you," he retorted.

KNOWS HIS RIGHTS

Leavenworth, Kans. — (P) — Leavenworth has parking meters. A patrolman saw a farmer park his car and walk away without placing a nickel in the machine.

"Nickel please," said the officer.

"Young fellow," replied the farmer, "I read what it says on that contraption. It says that I can park here for two hours for five cents. Well, I have only been here two minutes and when the two hours are up I will put in the nickel."

And that's what he did.

Hull Deplores Use Of Science in Wars Waged by Aggressors

Washington — (P) — Secretary of State Hull declared today that "a nation which curbs freedom of thought or denies the dignity of the human soul dooms itself inevitably to decadence."

"In some nations, science has been reduced to the sorry estate of a handmaiden of oppression and brute force," he told the eighth American scientific congress at the Pan American union.

"Science cannot flourish where freedom of thought does not exist," he added.

"Today we witness a stark demonstration of the possibilities of anti-social and anti-moral use of the achievements of science."

"Weapons made possible by great scientific discoveries . . . are being created and wielded by some nations in pursuit of policies of aggression and aggrandement. This compels other nations to create and wield similar weapons in defense or in preparation for defense."

Hull declared the fault was not the scientists', however, and said that creating conditions in which "scientific progress will serve constructive rather than destructive social and morals ends 'is a task for all mankind.'"

Who Loaded the Ruppert Rifles with Those Blanks?

BY EDDIE BRIETZ
NEW YORK.—(7)—It will be Promoter James J. Braddock soon—at Paterson, N. J., Lou Ambers didn't know it, but Lou Jenkins worked out all last fall with the New York football Giants. Good old Max Baer goes for a buck as fast as anyone, but he said to his credit he turned down a guarantee of $30,000 per year to turn wrestler. Tom Harmon, Michigan's all-America halfback, is waiting on tables in an Ann Arbor frat house to get meat and potatoes for himself.

Who loaded the Ruppert Rifles with all those blanks?

Observation Ward
When golf pro Harry Cooper leased a house at Evanston, Ill., he discovered a cocker spaniel named Taft went with it as standard equipment. The Kansas City (Kan.) Rosedale finished second in the team event of the A. B. C. with a score of 3,003, but wound up last in their own league back home. The women's state trapshoot champion of Illinois is, appropriately enough, Miss Evelyn Schott.

Sports Cocktail
Kansas State college students are campaigning for a new field house. Capacity of the present joint is 2,800 and the enrollment totals 4,000. The Cubs are mourning the loss of their No. 1 fan, Danny Cahill. He made the spring training trips regularly for 30 years and knew all the players intimately since the days of Frank Chance.

Wildcats Defeat Iowa in 2 Games For Big 10 Lead

Put Ticket Chances on Block This Week Against Wisconsin

CHICAGO—(7)—Northwestern, riding along at the head of the Big Ten Baseball parade with a 6-game winning streak, puts its ticket chances on the block this weekend in a 2-game series with Wisconsin's light-hitting crew.

The Wildcats, now leading with six wins in eight contests, complete their pennant bid in the Wisconsin series and another 2-game test the following week with Ohio State.

Northwestern took over the top spot the hard way, defeating Iowa twice last Friday and Saturday, 13 to 5 and 4 to 3. Harold Haub, undefeated in the league since 1938, absorbed both losses, breaking his string of nine straight mound triumphs.

The losses shoved Iowa, titleholder in 1938 and 1939, down to third place behind Illinois as well as Northwestern. The Illini has won seven and lost three.

Illinois Could Win
Illinois, conqueror of Purdue last week, 21 to 13 and 9 to 4, concludes conference competition this week in a 2-game engagement with Indiana at Champaign. If Northwestern should falter, the Illini could ease into the title by sweeping the Hoosier series.

Iowa, a half game ahead of fourth-place Michigan, is idle in the league until May 31 when the Hawks finish their season with two tilts against Minnesota.

Michigan stayed in the running for honors with 4 to 1 and 5 to 2 victories over Ohio State. Minnesota's pitchers turned in the best work of the weekend, shutting out Wisconsin for 18 innings, 7 to 0 and 1 to 0. Indiana defeated Chicago twice, 3 to 1 and 8 to 0.

In addition to Illinois, Chicago, Purdue, Wisconsin and Indiana complete their conference schedules this week.

Best Offense
Illinois has the best offensive record for the season so far, having averaged 8.4 runs per game while Chicago, in the basement, has been able to score only 2.3 runs per game. Iowa has the best defense, yielding only 3.4 runs a game and Chicago again is the worst, allowing 8.4 runs.

Springfield Browns Still Undeclared in Three-Eye Loop Race

By the Associated Press
Maybe the St. Louis Browns aren't headed anywhere in the American league but their Three Eye league cousins are doing all right by themselves.

The Springfield Brownies, St. Louis farm team, have yet to lose a game, winning their sixth straight yesterday, 22 to 6, with an 18-hit attack. Their victim was Waterloo which has lost seven straight games. Joe Grace, outfielder turned catcher, knocked two home runs as did Clarence Springer. John Hanson also hit for the circuit, the five homers accounting for 11 runs.

Evansville and Clinton stayed within a game and a half of the leaders by winning their seventh game. Evansville defeated Madison, 7 to 6, and Clinton nosed out Moline, 3 to 2. Gerry Feille's eighth inning homer deciding the issue.

Decatur bested Cedar Rapids, 7 to 6, with a 13-hit attack that included four home runs. Jake Suyar hit for the circuit twice and Ted Kokalaris and Nelson once apiece. Workman hit a round tripper for the losers.

Both Appleton Nines Lose Fox Valley Opener

KAUKAUNA—Connie Mack Berry may have been the pitcher who trounced the Appleton Papermakers, but to the Mellow Browns yesterday he was just another thrower. In their Fox River Valley league opener against the Menasha Falcons the Browns knocked Berry from the box in the seventh and went on to a 16 to 7 win.

Berry had survived a 5-run Kaukauna outburst in the fifth inning, but when four runs came across in the seventh he gave up. The Kaws slammed the Menasha star for 15 hits and 12 runs, including four doubles and a home run.

Diedrich in Trouble
Ray Diedrich, Kaw curveballer, had his troubles, being touched for five runs in the first of the fifth as the Falcons took a 6 to 2 margin. But Diedrich weathered the attack and went on to finish the game. The Menashans garnered 11 hits, including home runs by the Kala-

Clintonville Truckers Victims of Two Rivers

BY JIM BOHR
TWO RIVERS — The Clintonville Truckers took number two on the chin yesterday afternoon in a ten inning struggle with the Two Rivers Polar Bears, 11 to 10. Both teams played ragged ball and with a strong wind, it was the breaks that won the game. Two Rivers jumped into an early 5 to 0 lead before the Truckers broke the ice and in the seventh frame tied the game up at 8 and 8. They then took a 10 to 8 advantage only to have the Polar Bears tie it up in the ninth and score one run in the tenth to cap.

Home runs came in for their share of the laurels with each team credited for one. Rollie Meyer tied off for a four bagger his first time up for Two Rivers and Clancy Holm hit one for Clintonville in the third inning with a teammate on the bases. Rollie Kersten, third sacker for Clintonville, took top batting honors for the day with four out of six and was followed by Clarence Holm, Truckers shortstop, and Frosty Ferzacka, Clintonville second baseman, each with three out of six. Rollie Meyer, center fielder for Two Rivers, led his colleagues in batting with three out of six.

Meyer Homers
The Polar Bears opened fire in the first inning with a home run by Meyer. Then timely hits by Johnny Posewitz, first baseman, and Smoky Smogoleski, right fielder, scored another run. The second inning saw three more runs scored on four hits. The Truckers got their eye in the third and chalked up two markers on a single by Ferzacka and Holm's home run. Both teams scored one run in the fourth stanza and Two Rivers added another in the fifth while Clintonville went scoreless bringing the count to 7 and 3.

The Truckers battled all the way around in the sixth scoring four runs and did almost the same in the seventh to score three runs and take the lead, 10 to 8. The Cool City team added one in the eighth and tied up the ball game in the ninth, 10 and 10.

In the tenth frame Posewitz, the first batter for Two Rivers, slid out. Smogoleski doubled and Sid Felts, manager of the Truckers, replaced himself on the mound with Lefty Jim Huffman. The next two batters walked and with the bases loaded, Haack, shortstop for the Polar Bears, hit a perfect double play ball to the Clintonville shortstop but it took a bad bounce and before the play could be completed Smogoleski had scored the winning run. Felts was charged with the loss and Lefty Fortin, who replaced Lefty Kreske in the sixth inning, took credit for the win.

Paced by Hertz, who won three first places, Coach Ronald Murray's Weyauwega thinclads took third place in the Class C meet, and North Fond du Lac won the championship. The North Fond du Lac outfit collected 46 points against 31 for Valders, second place winners. Weyauwega collected 26 points.

Great Many Families In Studying the pictures and text I was surprised at the great number of bird families found in both countries. Besides the birds named above, others which appear to be practically the same as ours are the redpoll, the nuthatch, the wren (known to them as "Kitty wren") the tree creeper (like our brown creeper), shrike, wax-wing, oriole and magpie.

Many Bird Families Found in Both North America, Europe

BY CLARA HUSSONG

Many times when reading the literature of Europe we run across bird names which are familiar to us and we know that a few birds found in both the eastern and western hemispheres are identical, a great many having the same names and different species of the same family, and some are altogether different although they bear the same names.

The herring gull is one which is found in both North America and Europe, extending its range from the Arctic ocean southward in the United States to Mexico and the Mediterranean and Caspian seas.

Continuing with the comparison of the birds of the two continents, the European song thrush resembles our wood thrush, their skin is a more yellow version of our pine siskin, their crossbills are greenish instead of red and their jays, although large and crested like ours, are fawn-colored instead of blue. They have a green woodpecker and also a lesser spotted woodpecker which looks a little like our downy.

Many of us love the gurgling song of our blackbirds and when reading of the European bird with the same name we may think the two alike, but they are not. Their blackbird, about the size of ours, belongs to the thrush family and is greatly beloved for its beautifully-whistled song. The bird is entirely black with an inch-long orange bill.

Named for Songs

Like our own robin, the European thrush family but it is about the size of the chickadee, with an olive-brown back and reddish face and breast. It was the reddish breast of our bird which led the early settlers to give it the name of its smaller European relative. The song is said to be "sweet and varied," consisting of disconnected passages of considerable beauty, and these plaintive warblings he will continue for upwards of half an hour.

Many of our own birds are given names which the inhabitants of their songs. We have plovers, peewees, chickadees, chickadees, bobolinks, bob-whites, whip-poor-wills and others. The chaffinch is a European bird which has been introduced here but has not thrived as well as the skylark.

4-H Club Has Meeting At Cicero Residence

Cicero—The North Cicero 4-H club held its monthly meeting at the home of Audrey Butler last week. The meeting was opened with a pledge to the flag and singing of "America." An article, "America First," was read by Ralph Mory, and a poem by Vivian Zandary.

Plans were discussed for the program to be given Tuesday evening in the Cicero State Graded school. A one act play, "In Behalf of a Calf," will be given. Other shorter numbers will include songs by Audrey Butler, Delores Roepcke, Norris Bubolz and Eugene Roepcke. There also will be a boxing match between Douglas and Ronald Steward. The business meeting was concluded with a final check up on projects. A lunch was served at the end of the meeting.

Society Plans Chicken Dinner, School Picnic

Hortonville—Bethlehem Lutheran congregation of Hortonville will hold its annual public chicken and roast pork dinner and school picnic at the church grounds, May 25, on the church grounds. A program will be given in the afternoon by the parochial school children.

A committee of the Ladies Aid society met recently with the school board to decide on the date and to make general arrangements. The society will serve the dinner.

WAR TALK

Zurich, Switzerland—(17)—The Zurich newspaper "Die Tat" complained recently in a front page editorial that the Swiss are so interested in their bird neighbor's wars and political troubles that they're forgetting their own internal problems.

"We gaze in an almost hypnotic state at what is going on beyond our frontiers," said the paper, "and meanwhile our own internal affairs suffer from lack of interest."

BALTIC

In front page news these days we often read something about "the Baltic." This sea of northern Europe is important in the present warfare.

The Baltic sea and region around it. The Baltic sea has many countries around its borders including Russia, Finland, Sweden, Denmark, Germany, Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia.

One little fact may have something to do with the outcome of the war in Europe--"water with only a little salt in it will freeze more quickly than water with a good deal of salt."

More than 250 rivers and large streams pour fresh water into the Baltic sea. This water makes the sea far less salty than it would be otherwise. It is only about one-fourth as salty as the Atlantic.

There are great stretches of the Baltic which freeze up in winter. The northern end of the sea, the Gulf of Bothnia, is frozen to such an extent that steamers cannot use it.

In most years the Gulf of Bothnia is not fit for steamers from November to early May. This closes the ports of northern Sweden and blocks the taking of iron ore to Germany down the Baltic sea.

The mines of northern Sweden have produced a great deal of the iron to keep Germany's war machine going. The iron is high grade, and is in demand all the year around.

Until lately, Swedish iron was shipped to Norway in winter. It went to the port of Narvik, then steamers carried it down the Norwegian coast to Germany. So long as the Allies block Narvik, Germany will lose her easy winter water route for Swedish iron.

There remains the question of summer transport. With the opening of the Gulf of Bothnia this month, the Baltic water route is free.

Yet there is this point: the Baltic is shallow compared to other seas of its size. The average depth is less than 350 feet, and it is possible to anchor mines where a sea is not very deep. Some work along this line was reported done soon after the German invasion of Norway. Mines can be laid by marines and airplanes, as well as by ordinary mine-laying ships. It is likely that Germany will have a hard time keeping the Baltic free for summer use.

Our Duty to America

Only a miracle, like the miracle of the Marne, can now prevent the European war from becoming a World War. For while Norway and Denmark were outposts, the Netherlands and Belgium, and it may be Switzerland, are the gateways to the citadel itself. This is as Hitler proclaimed, the supreme effort to destroy the Allies totally and if the enterprise shows signs of succeeding, Mussolini will join him and almost certainly Russia will follow. If the blow is deadly enough, Spain in Europe and Japan in the Far East will find some way to intervene so that they may participate in the totalitarian victory and qualify as partners.

For the United States this is the beginning of the most critical period in seventy years. Our security is gravely jeopardized. The nation is unprepared in all essential respects—in the material for defense, in training, in discipline, in its industrial organization, in its political and in its mind and heart—to protect adequately and swiftly its vital interests. Our cities will not be bombed; our young men will not be conscripted and sent to fight in Belgium. But if the offensive which Hitler has now launched succeeds, we shall know no peace in our lifetime.

If it succeeds, and as it succeeds, we shall be confronted—not at some more convenient moment after the election in November but in the months, weeks, days, and hours—with choices of the greatest magnitude. We shall be compelled to choose again and again—in the Pacific, in the Atlantic, in the Caribbean, in South America, in Africa between retreat and resistance. The choices will not be a simple choice between war and peace. They will be choices between giving up the protection behind which we have lived for more than a century in undisturbed freedom and without militarism and of acting henceforth with full and impressive energy to maintain that protection. For if the Allied power falls, there will fall with it all the other defenses of the Western Hemisphere, and we shall be left isolated in a world dominated on both sides of our oceans by the most formidable alliance of victorious conquerors that was ever formed in the whole history of man.

Can Only Be Certain of Protecting 48 States

No doubt we should still be able to protect the forty-eight states, from direct invasion. But in the present condition of our defenses and in the present condition of our minds that is all we can be reasonably sure of doing if the Allied power falls in Europe, our fleet will be needed nearer home and we can protect nothing in the Far East, not the Philippines or the Netherlands Indies or Africa, then, our only recourse is to the fact that Japan will be master of the Pacific, and therefore, capable of subjecting us to very serious pressure upon some of the most essential materials of our economic life. If the Allied power falls in Europe, the victorious coalition headed by Hitler will seize and hold air and fleet bases in Iceland, Greenland, perhaps Ireland, Gibraltar, the Azores, the Cape Verde Islands and in the French, Belgian and British colonies along the west coast of Africa. Our neighbors in the Atlantic will then be not the easy-going and complacent British but the Rome-Berlin Axis, intoxicated with victory and drunk with power. If the Allied power falls in Europe, the next thing to do is to adopt a program of national defense of vast scale—greater scope than that which is now in operation. The experience of Great Britain should be a lesson to us that it is not enough to appropriate money to buy what the existing facilities can supply. It is necessary to create new shipyards, new airplane factories, new plants for the production of guns and other implements of war. There is needed a larger investment of new capital; it is not safe to let the aircraft for its expansion upon subsidies from the Allies. The subsidies should be given by the United States government as a primary measure of American national policy, and they should be given promptly and on a large scale so that no unnecessary time may be lost in building the plants, manufacturing the tools, training the workmen and recruiting the men.

These things cannot be improvised, and to wait another year until Congress comes back after the elections is to risk putting this country in a position where, like Great Britain today, it might never or without immeasurable sacrifice, be able to make up for the time it had lost. No doubt these are not the things politicians think it safe to do in an election year. This is no ordinary year, and venture to predict that if our public men now fail to do the imperative things the time will come when it will not be politically safe for them to face the voters with a record of having neglected these imperative things.

Sen. LaFollette To Answer Rumors About Affiliation

Will Address Progressive Party at Wisconsin Rapids Sunday

Madison—(AP)—Progressive headquarters announced today Senator Robert M. LaFollette Jr., would answer rumors about his political affiliation in the 1940 campaign when he delivers the principal address at the Progressive party's birthday conference at Wisconsin Rapids next Sunday.

The arrangements committee said it had been informed by Senator LaFollette, who comes up for reelection this year, he would "encounter head-on" reports that he might run as a republican, a Democrat or an Independent.

Reports in Progressive circles were that Senator LaFollette would be a candidate on the Progressive ticket.

The Democratic central committee, at a meeting here Saturday, decided to hold a statewide conference at Green Bay June 8, one week after the Republican state convention in the same city.

The committee met jointly with Democratic county chairmen. It took no action on whether the conference should endorse state and national candidates.

Name Committee
Chairman William D. Carroll, of Prairie du Chien, appointed a committee to arrange convention details. The members are John Kehoe, of Green Bay; Dr. J. H. Wallis, of Rice Lake; George Weiss, of Sheboygan Falls; Adam Port, of Horton; Alvin Juskens, of Milwaukee; and Jay Gloriam, of Kenosha.

Letting was named in place of George Keller, of Appleton, president of the Democratic Party Organization of Wisconsin, who declined appointment on the ground he favored an open primary and would oppose endorsement of candidates.

The 24 delegates to the Democratic national convention at Chicago left in doubt their choices for national committeemen and committeewomen.

Twelve of the Roosevelt-Farley delegates signed a resolution supporting committeemen Charles E. Broughton, of Sheboygan, for another term, William B. Rubin, of Milwaukee, another Roosevelt-Farley delegate did not commit himself.

This left the delegation divided since the three members supporting Vice President Garner and the eight Keller delegates pledged to President Roosevelt took no action.

The first thing that must be done only the President can do. He must tell the people the truth as he sees it and trust to their patriotism and their good sense. That is his duty. The people are entitled to know what the President really thinks. Let the partisan politicians make the most of it. For it might as well be settled now, rather than later when the question may be still more critical, whether the issue of national security is to be kicked about by self-seeking partisan politicians. My impression is that the destinies of people of this country are just about tied up with all the calculated maneuvering, which is politely called political strategy that they are aware of the extreme peril of this hour and they will respond to the leadership of the President of the United States.

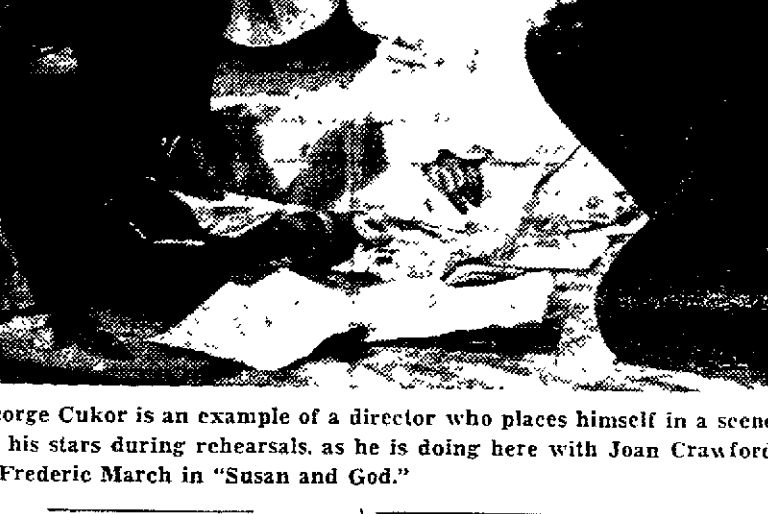

The next thing to do is to adopt a program of national defense of vast scale—greater scope than that which is now in operation. The experience of Great Britain should be a lesson to us that it is not enough to appropriate money to buy what the existing facilities can supply. It is necessary to create new shipyards, new airplane factories, new plants for the production of guns and other implements of war. Democrats Seek Harmony as They Look Toward Fall

All Factions Get Together To Talk Over Convention Plans

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—Leaders of the various factions of the Democratic minority in Wisconsin, conscious that a continued division of their strength will mean suicide in the 1940 campaign, went through the motion of burying the hatchet at meetings here over the weekend.

While evidence of the harmony which all factions agreed is needed remains sketchy, these are the principal results of the various meetings and conferences here during the weekend:

1. Charles E. Broughton, Democratic national committeeman who has been the butt of a revolt movement within the party, apparently continues in control of the party's New Deal regulars, and is on the way to becoming national committeeman for a third term.

2. The hold of William D. Carroll, conservative chairman of the state organization, on the party is stronger than was generally realized, and if rumors of his impending resignation are true, he will quit of his own volition rather than from pressure out of the ranks.

3. Unless it is successful in electing enough county delegations to control the Green Bay state convention on June 8 the Democratic Party Organization of Wisconsin, rebel unit founded by Gustave Keller, of Appleton against the leadership of Broughton and Carroll, will have failed.

Form New Group
4. County chairmen, under the leadership of John D. Kehoe, of Brown County, embraced by the factionalism of their leaders, are determined to follow through with efforts to form a new and neutral organization which will avoid the quarrels of the official leaders and concentrate on recreating a campaign organization for 1940.

Principal results of the state central committee session included the selection of Green Bay as the site for the summer nominating convention, over the spirited bid of Wausau and Fond du Lac, and the election of alternates to the party's delegates to the national nominating convention in July. The election went off without difficulty, with each delegate nominating his choice of an alternate and getting the endorsement of the committee without question.

Gerald Clifford Roosevelt-Farley delegate from the Eighth district, chose Fred Coffey of Marinette as his alternate, while Bert Larkin of Two Rivers, also a Roosevelt-Farley pledged delegate, nominated James Marquette of Oconto. Both were approved by the committee.

That the harmony about which they talked so much during the series of meetings Saturday is not yet assured was indicated decisively in a brief flurry of debate over the question of the open primary this week.

Doty Tennis Players Defeat Rockford Club

Neenah—The Doty Tennis club team defeated the Rockford, Ill., tennis club squad, 5 to 4, in a match Sunday at Rockford.

In the singles, Walter Senior Doty, club, defeated Fred Hewes, Rockford, 6-2, 6-3. Mory Lewis, Doty, won from Charles Barnes, Rockford, 6-1, 6-3. Donald Frederickson, Doty, defeated Paul Patton, Rockford, 6-2, 6-2. Hugh Strange, Jr., Doty, lost to Aaron Gottlieb, Rockford, 3-6, 3-6. Henry DuPont, Doty, lost to Stanley Rice, 1-6, 4-6, and Dudley Young, Doty, lost to Woodie Dorward, Rockford, 3-6, 3-6.

In the doubles, Senior-Fredrickson won from Hewes-Rice, 7-5, 8-6. Lewis-DuPont defeated Barnes-Dorward, 6-1, 8-6, and Young-Strange lost to Cradd-Patton, 2-6, 3-6.

Schedule Hearing on Cost of Improvements

Neenah—The committee on public improvements of the city council will conduct a hearing on assessments for installation of curbs and gutters on Van and Grove streets and water mains on Cedar street at 7 o'clock Tuesday evening at the city hall, according to City Clerk H. S. Zenlock.

USHERS TO ELECT
Menasha—Ushers of St. Patrick's Catholic church will elect officers at the next meeting of the group May 22, in the school hall.

A slate of candidates and favoring strict compliance with the new open primary principle, Carroll ruled it out of order and his decision was sustained by a healthy margin.

When Carroll chose a committee to handle arrangements for the Green Bay rally, Keller declined membership, because, he explained, it would be inconsistent with the position of the DPOW which has already publicly gone on record at a Fond du Lac meeting two weeks ago against endorsing candidates.

Most of the speeches were confined to the necessity for unity and unity for the forthcoming election tests and the wisdom of beginning work immediately on the "removal of dead timber" and forming new party units in many counties where the county organizations have gone to seed during many months of inactivity.

That sounded like harmony. But then came the speeches of Edward Curry, Milwaukee, chairman, the well-known antagonistic chairman, who jointly led the revolt in the party against the old leadership.

The trouble with the official leadership of the party, said Curry bluntly, is that "it has been operating on a basis of mystery, secrecy, and bankruptcy for eight years. He conceded that Carroll and Broughton "were fine fellows to sit down and drink Scotch and soda with."

To the roomful of Democrats, which included a number of men active in the 1938 Republican-Democratic coalition, and acknowledged conservatives, Keller declared: "Until the Democratic party becomes once and for all a liberal party and stops flirting with the Republicans, there will be no chance for victory or harmony. The first thing the Democratic party in Wisconsin needs is to be honest. We can't be honest if we compromise and sell away principle, and if the party has a leadership opposed to Roosevelt."

That the harmony about which they talked so much during the series of meetings Saturday is not yet assured was indicated decisively in a brief flurry of debate over the question of the open primary this week.

Chic German-Made Clothes are for Other Than Nazis

Berlin—Fashions don't apply in Germany for the duration of the war. Articles of clothing ordered for export however, must keep abreast of the latest fashions.

That, in a nutshell, is the essence of an order issued by the German clothing industry to its entire membership.

The order stipulates that economy of material is the main desideratum in the manufacture of clothes. "A man's suit can well look presentable," the order points out, "even if the decrees of fashion haven't been observed in its manufacture. A dress needn't be attractive merely because the skirt isn't as wide as decreed by fashion."

That export orders fall into a different category is made plain by the "Textil-Zeitung," trade organ of the clothing industry.

"It needs hardly to be pointed out that orders placed in Germany by foreign customers must be executed exactly as the customer desires. It is the duty, yes the two-fold duty, of German industry to treat this foreign customer with particular politeness."

Germany is most anxious to keep up this world trade as she still has, and is also anxious for every dollar, pound, franc or other foreign currency that she may use for importing articles essential to her conduct of the war.

National Defense Plans May Become Issue of Election

Republicans Veering From Peace-at-Any Price Position — Lawrence

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — Political strategy for the coming campaign has been revised overnight due to the gravity of the European situation.

Republican politicians, not knowing what the future may hold in store for the country, are veering away from any sort of peace-at-any-price position and are beginning to wonder if the true basis is for an effective opposition may not be to focus attention on national defense mistakes and weaknesses.

The administration—so the argument runs—has spent billions on WPA and relief to provide employment when it might have been building with the same funds an adequate defense for the United States against any and all comers, thereby relieving unemployment and having something to show for it.

Such a position for the Republicans, however depends for its effectiveness on a convincing demonstration of the present inadequacy of the military, naval and aerial forces of the United States. The facts are at present unrevealed officially. Yet the inside talk for several months in Washington is that America's preparedness for war is absurdly insufficient and that if the American people knew the whole truth they would be as shocked as were the British people when they found themselves plunged into war without a big enough air force to combat the enemy.

Insist On Probe
The most natural thing for the Republicans to do is to insist that congress stay in Washington and that a complete investigation be made of what the United States has failed to do in the last seven years that the whole European world has been armoring to the teeth.

The Democrats, on the other hand, will wish to point the finger of blame at prominent Republicans who have opposed military and naval appropriation increases. Secretary Hull wanted a larger battle-ship program about three years ago, but was not backed up. The Democratic party, of course, has had command of both houses of congress for nearly eight years now and during that same interval the whole armament situation in the world has undergone drastic change. The Republicans may argue that the Democratic party must accept the responsibility for sins of omission.

Within another month the Republican party will be making its platform. The pre-convention speeches of its candidates have emphasized domestic issues, but the invasion of Holland and Belgium by the nazis has made the American people more conscious than they have been of the implications of what is happening in Europe. This means that there will have to be a change in Republican tactics.

It is unlikely that the Republicans will adopt a simple stay-out-of-war program because the Democrats will insist they, too, intend to stay out of war. It will no longer be possible persuasively to argue that the administration "wants" to drag America into war. The argument now will turn on which leadership is better in the event that America, through no fault of her own, is dragged in by world events over which she has no control.

Position In 1916
The Republicans may find themselves contending, somewhat as they did in 1916 when the last European war was on, namely that the administration was not sufficiently vigorous or efficient in its defense plans. The Republicans lost that election by only a slight margin. Unfortunately as a result of that campaign, the German government got the impression that the United States would not fight for any reason in defense of her rights. The Democratic position in 1916 had

Kiddies May be Crying for Whey Lollipops Before Long

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau
Washington—New uses for whey, bi-product of cheese making, have been developed by the department of agriculture and will, undoubtedly, tempt the Wisconsin palate and pocketbook.

Now wasted by the ton, whey may be used, for instance, for "wheyers," an inexpensive new chocolate-covered confection. Recently discovered by B. H. Webb and C. F. Hugnagel of the bureau been entirely a "peace-and-prosperity" strategy.

But there is an altogether different issue looming up now. It fits in with what the Republicans have been saying for some time, namely that the New Deal has been encouraging a drift toward collectivism. The Republicans might contend that if a Republican president and a Republican congress were in power, the American people—even if forced into war—could be absolutely sure when peace came that their democratic form of government and the system of private initiative would be restored to them while the New Deal brain trusters, if left in command, would so completely transform the economic system as to make private enterprise unworkable.

Confidence Of Country
The Republicans will have to nominate somebody who has the confidence of the country as being unalterably committed to the system of private initiative as against state socialism. The Democrats, on the other hand, if they renominate the president will have to give convincing proof that they do not mean to take advantage of war powers to confiscate private property to ward which goal radicals among them have been gradually tending.

If Mr. Roosevelt is a third term candidate, he will find his biggest opposition based on a fear that a third term for the New Deal plus a war will mean the end of the private enterprise system. The president could meet this sort of argument by action even now. He could give the government boards and commissions and bureaus a housecleaning and he could begin to remove the weight of his influence from his party in congress so that various statutes which sadly need amendment could be amended.

The one thing that would militate against election of the president for a third term if war is really imminent is not so much the tradition of a third term but the fear among the managers of business enterprise that Mr. Roosevelt will never handle the labor problem with a firm hand as must needs be the case in war time. A difference to labor leadership's demands has weakened the president's position and during the coming campaign, the opposition needs only to refer to the weaknesses in France and Britain on the labor front to discover why the allies are so unprepared today to meet their enemies in the air. Instead of the issue of staying-out-of-war, the whole campaign may turn on which party could—if war came—fight the war successfully and turn back to the people a system of democracy and free enterprise when the war ended.

of dairy industry. This candy has not yet been made commercially.

"To make the new candy," Webb and Hugnagel explain, "sweet pasteurized whey and sugar are evaporated together under vacuum pressure to a thick smooth consistency and then whipped until light and fluffy. Chopped nuts and cooked cereal to take away any salty whey taste are added. Then the mixture is rolled out in a thin layer and dried. Cut in small wafers, the candy is dipped in chocolate to keep it from absorbing moisture and becoming sticky or crystallizing."

Whey is also excellent for making chocolate fudge, caramels, taffy and various mixtures for the center of chocolates, it is said.

The principle reason formulas for whey candy have not been turned into recipes, according to the bureau, is that the whey is not yet available on the market. Dairy farmers, however, would have a sufficiency at hand.

Bureau scientists recommend whey as an ingredient, not only for candy, but for soups, cup cakes, puddings, and even gravy.

The food value of whey is excellent it is stated. The material contains about half the food solids of the original milk, mostly in the form of milk sugar, with a scattering of minerals and vitamins.

The taste, is pleasantly disguised by the time whey is made into candy or introduced into other food, scientists say further.

Those interested in discovering possibilities for manufacture of whey products are advised to write to the Bureau of Dairy Industry, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Decide Not to Buy New Motorcycle for Police

Waupaca — There will be no new motorcycle for Memorial day as suggested by Mayor I. B. Erickson at the latest meeting of the common council. This was determined at a joint meeting of the finance committee with the police committee following the report to the council by the latter committee which advocated repairs to the five year old machine. Mayor Erickson, not satisfied with the report of the committee, asked that it be considered more fully and that if no machine be purchased in place of the outmoded one that the office of traffic officer be abolished. The committee, however, ordered repairs, which were begun in a local shop Saturday.

New Principal Is Named at Waupaca

Harold Caanan Appointed To Position; Henry Lampmann Goes to Antigo

Waupaca — The resignation of Henry Lampmann, junior high instructor, was accepted by the board of education Friday evening to discuss the plans for another year's work. Mr. Lampmann has accepted a position in the Antigo school system.

Harold Caanan was appointed principal of the high school at a salary of $1,600. He assumes the work formerly carried on by George Hendrickson, who was recently elected city superintendent of schools. With several of the contracts still unsigned other changes are expected among the teaching force. A crowded condition in the sixth grade has been so emphasized by instructors who feel that children are not getting the attention that they are really entitled to, that Miss Golderine Lempke has been given part time work as sixth grade instructor and part time as remedial reading teacher. Her salary is $1,100.

L. M. Eans, present superintendent, has accepted a position as principal of Maplewood elementary schools near Madison.

Pickle Companies Signing Contracts

Royalton—Pickle companies are now contracting with farmers to raise cucumbers this summer. Morgan Van Ornum will have charge of the receiving station here.

It is predicted the price for cucumbers will be somewhat in advance of last year.

Mr. and Mrs. William Kraske of Chicago have arrived to spend the summer at Northport.

Bob Stewart, librarian at the CCC camp at Rib Mountain, is spending a week's vacation in his home at Northport.

Automobiles Badly Damaged in Smashup

Weyauwega—Two cars crashed at the intersection of Pine and Wisconsin streets Sunday noon. The drivers were Harland Wall, traveling east on Wisconsin street, and Orville Koehler, traveling north on Pine street. Both cars were badly damaged but the drivers escaped injury.

So They Will Use Live Stiffs For the Blackjack Exhibition

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—A slight error occurred in these dispatches a couple of days ago which it is now designed to correct.

In discussing the athletic program or gymkhana to be discussed in connection with the convention of the stagehands and movie employees' union, which will be held in Louisville beginning June 3 and continued until the police are able to recapture the city, these dispatches said stuffed dummies, representing the American working stiff, would be used in the blackjack exhibition—the feature of the show.

Your correspondent has received many calls from indignant leaders of this distinguished organization denying that such is the plan. Stuffed dummies will not be used, and moreover, the event will not be an exhibition but a competitive tournament for cash prizes. Live subjects will be used.

Most of them will be taken from the rank and file of Local 306 of the moving picture operators of New York City, a body of men who have developed special craft and agility in ducking blows of the blackjack through long experience under the leadership of Mr. Sam Kaplan, a prison alumnus.

It is felt that members of Local 306 will offer the best sport and call forth the best efforts of the gorillas who serve the cause of labor with a capital L under the leadership of the international president, Mr. George Brown. The members of Local 306 are fleet, nimble and possessed of marvelous skill in ducking into doorways, running upstairs and leaping from roof to roof when attacked by sportsmen with blackjacks, and it is felt that a convey of stiffs from 306, augmented, perhaps, by a few stars from the Los Angeles district, where Willie Bioff's sluggers developed some unusually fine performers will bring out the best that is in the gorillas of the union.

"We never use stuffed dummies, and whoever it was that told you we were planning to use them probably was an enemy of labor desirous of giving our leaders a bad name," an angry voice informed your correspondent on the phone. "We always use the fastest and most durable live stiffs that we can get, and we have found that because of their long training under practical conditions the members of 306 provide the best sport."

Sometimes Have To Chase Them Around
"Sometimes you have to chase them two or three blocks and send beaters up the stairs two or three doors down the street to head them off as they hop over the roof. Some of them are so tough that you have to practically beat their ears off, and I assure you that glancing blows do not count for anything against those 306 boys. You have to konk them dead square or they will get away every time."

"Naturally, as sportsmen, we do not like that, not only because we like to get a stiff once we belt him but also because if you just swipe a stiff in a glancing manner he may get away and lie in some dark alley or hallway and suffer for hours."
